The Outlaw Deputy : Ex-outlaw Tim Mallory is looking for the killer of his friend Chuck. Having thwarted a robbery attempt by one of his old gang members he is made a Deputy. He finds Houger who he believes is the killer and starts cleaning up his town. When an old gang member arrives and exposes him, he is arrested. But before being taken to jail, he sees Houger is wearing Chuck's watch. Tim Malloy (Tim McCoy) turned outlaw to right a great wrong. After that purpose has been attained, another task awaits him---the avenging of the murder of his young friend Chuck Adams (George Offerman, Jr. billed as he always was.) The trail leads Tim to Goldland which is ruled by gamblers and bandits and has a useless sheriff. Mine owner Rutledge (Joseph Girard) has Tim appointed a deputy to enforce the law. Tim defies Howger (Hooper Atchley), boss of Goldland, at the saloon headquarters of the gang, and his gun barks death to the henchmen sent to get him. Joyce Rutledge (Nora Lane) is fascinated, but fears Tim, whom she thinks is too ruthless in his methods. Her opinion changes when she sees him, outnumbered, disperse Howger's henchmen, when they disrupt a church service. Cash (Bud Osborne), an old enemy, who is aware of Tim's outlaw past, reveals it to Howager. Tim admits the truth to Howager's accusations and is jailed. Joyce goes to the jail at night and frees him. In the final reckoning, Tim shoots down Howger, whom he identifies as the killer of Chuck as he is carrying Chuck's watch which was taken off his body. Mission accomplished, Tim is about to ride away...maybe.

Moto 7: The Movie : MOT07: A film that rewrites the moto playbook, with the biggest jumps, the gnarliest tracks, and some of the most remote locations a motorcycle has ever touched. Experience Blake Baggett's newly-developed El Chupacabra Ranch in Florida, one of the most gargantuan home tracks ever made, where Baggett and Ken Roczen enjoy a daily routine of riding light speed fast laps with an almost lackadaisical ease. Three miles away, Aldon Baker trains factory superstars Ryan Dungey, Marvin Musquin and Jason Anderson on a program fit for Seal Team Six. Then there's the Smokey Mountains in Idaho, where the Sipes brothers Ryan and Justin go to feel the sweet serenity of a man, his motorcycle, and countless miles of natural single-track. All of these riders are taking moto to territories it has never seen, be that on the stopwatch or the trail map. There's Colton Haaker, the Endurocross phenom whose bike-control and technical abilities are that of superhuman levels. Then of course, Justin Barcia, the exemplar of style on a motocross bike, the guy who defies logic and rides with an amount of panache and flamboyance that is shunned in professional motocross, yet somehow has climbed to the top of the sport.

French Baroque: Now and Then : This DVD/VHS program, THE ART OF BAROQUE DANCE : Folies d'Espagne from Page to Stage (DVD in English and French; VHS in English only) explores the elements that enable us to better understand the historical preservation of dance, from the academic page to its transformation into a vibrant performance. This fascinating video, produced in France, reveals the 17th century Baroque dance of the sophisticated era of King Louis XIV. The king, himself an excellent dancer, ordered the invention of a notation system for dance to teach, codify, and spread this art. The French still continue to celebrate 17th century dance today. It is considered to be the most perfect form of art, uniting all of the qualities needed to educate one's body and soul. View the Video Created by dancers in Paris, the new video, THE ART OF BAROQUE DANCE, is generously layered with a wealth of historic architectural and artistic images. The video's director/choreographer, Natalie Van Parys, has an outstanding French Baroque heritage. Through this video, her lifetime of knowledge and experience enable the next generation to appreciate a venerable art from the past. In this important DVD/VHS, one famous dance, "Folies d'Espagne", is beautifully explored. This popular dance, with its music, has been selected because it features short highly expressive pieces. Each variation has its own temperament, which is inspiration for that choreography. By viewing the re-creation of this one Baroque dance, "Folies d'Espagne", the viewer can trace 5 important characteristics portrayed in this dance performance: .Dance notation .Treatment of space .Arm embellishments .Relation to music .Interpretation of the dancer Thus, this video explores the creative process of researching, reconstructing, re-creating, and performing a Baroque dance. With THE ART OF BAROQUE DANCE : Folies d'Espagne from Page to Stage the public will be able to uncover the secrets of the interpretation of a dance, discover its beauty, better understand the elegance and virtuosity of the French Baroque style, and enter into the world of the very close relationship that existed between dance and music in the 17th century.

14

The Ballad of Lefty Brown : When cowboy Lefty Brown witnesses the murder of his longtime partner, the newly-elected Senator Edward Johnson. He strikes out to find the killers and avenge his friend's gruesome death. Tracking the outlaws across the vast and desolate Montana plains, Lefty recruits a young gunslinger, Jeremiah, and an old friend, a hard-drinking U.S. Marshall, to help deliver the men to justice. After a gunfight with the outlaws leaves Jeremiah wounded, Lefty returns home with the names of Johnson's killers only to find that he is being accused of his friend's murder. With the tables turned, and with his friend in the governor's mansion refusing to help, Lefty must evade the law and prove his innocence by exposing the powerful men ultimately responsible for Johnson's death.

15

The Willing Suspension of Disbelief : "The willing Suspension of Disbelief" is a taut psychological thriller in which Quentin (Ryan Hauser), a down and out filmmaker, enters the very noir crime world depicted in his films to steal the money he desperately needs to finish his rag tag production. Matters become increasingly complicated when he becomes involved with the mysterious Veri Similitude (Erinn Gavaghan) a night-club singer and aspiring actress who happens to be involved with the same mob boss he is trying to rob. The line between reality and cinema deteriorates as Quentin delves deeper and deeper into the criminal underworld and becomes more and more obsessed with finishing his film until his life and art threaten to converge towards a catastrophe collision.

16

The Firing Line : An American military advisor becomes disillusioned by the brutality and corruption of the Central American government which hired him. When his shift in sympathies becomes known, he's arrested and tortured but soon escapes, along with a beautiful American woman, in order to join the rebels.

Wessyngton Plantation: A Family's Road to Freedom : In 1796, Joseph Washington, a distant relative of our first president, purchased sixty acres in Middle Tennessee for tobacco farming. Eventually covering 13,000 acres, Wessyngton Plantation would thrive off the blood, sweat and tears of hundreds of African Americans. Unlike other plantations only two slaves were ever sold from Wessyngton, resulting in several generations of enslaved family members living and laboring together. As a child, Author John F. Baker Jr. was mysteriously drawn to a photo of Robertson County slaves in his middle school textbook. When his grandmother explained that he was looking at his great-grandparents, he became obsessed with their story. In 2008 his book "The Washington's of Wessyngton Plantation" was released. The culmination of more than thirty years of research, it details the lives of hundreds of his family members. Baker spent decades combing through countless family and state archives, researching birth and death records, and conducting dozens of interviews with relatives and historians. Wessyngton Plantation: A Family's Road to Freedom brings to life this deeply moving story of pain and perseverance.

28

The Vengeance Trail : Rambunctious cowboy Big Boy Bronson's antics get under his father's skin, and ranch hands Larson and Powell's efforts to make him look bad don't help matters. Things turn serious, though, when Bronson has to prove that he's not involved with a string of cattle thefts--actually being done by Larson and Powell--and a bank robbery he was unwittingly lured into by the pair.

29

The Janus Project : The relationship of SHANE, an ex-special ops soldier, and LEXI, a gifted psychology student, is tested as supernatural forces threaten to transform reality as they know it. 31

You Are the One : Sally Malasmas applies for a US visa. There she meets the young and dashing vice-consul Will Derby with a wide, warm and inviting smile. Sally feels it's her lucky day! But Will thinks Sally does not have enough ties to the Philippines that will make her come back. He denies her visa, beams one last sweet smile at her and turns his back before she could protest. It isn't Sally's lucky day anymore. Sally Malasmas is a Care Officer at the National Statistics

Office. She's smart and is a genuinely caring person who always has a hand to help other people. But despite her capabilities, Sally feels insecure of her older sister Charry whom she feels her parents always favored and always outperformed her. And in love, Sally tends to be needy and clingy. Her parents and only sister have all migrated to the United States to embrace the 'American Dream'. But for Sally, the Philippines is where she wants to be. Will Derby is a dashing vice-consul from the United States Embassy in Manila. He grew up in pre-dominantly white North Dakota where very few Filipinos live. But Will is not an American. He's a Filipino adopted by an old American couple. He would have avoided being posted in the Philippines, a place he doesn't like very much, if he could. But a promise to his mother to search for his real parents made him not to. Will has always lived a life of incompleteness and unbelongingness. Even his relationships are fleeting until he meets Sally. Sally is only forced to apply for a US Visa because her sick mom who refuses to come home needs care. So for Sally, how could Mr. Derby think she's another TNT when she never ever dreamed of going to the land of milk and honey?! She is definitely insulted. And too bad she initially thought he's gorgeous. To make things worse, Will decides to finally try searching for his parents. He goes to the NSO to look for his original birth certificate. Fate plays a trick and makes Sally and Will meet again. She seeks revenge and makes him wait all afternoon for his document. But her ploy fires back as her boss catches her. Now, she's forced to help him. After giving it some thought, Sally sees the opportunity to use Will to finally get a visa. She goes out of her way to go with him to places, from the rugged Tondo to a town fiesta in Pampanga, just to find his parents. As they inch nearer and nearer to where his parents are, they also get closer and closer to each other. And after several experiences together, from getting caught by the police in a gambling house to the more intimate fiesta plaza dance, their initial attraction becomes real, though unconfessed, love. Will Mr. Derby finally discover where his real parents are? And with his posting in Manila about to end, will he find another reason to stay? Will there be a chance for Sally and Will's Love to bloom? And if there is, will they have the courage to admit it's each other that they need? You Are The One explores the insanities that comes with love, the impossibilities to be hurdled to make love happen and the self-confidence we all need to make love work.

Triumphs of a Man Called Horse : An Englishman, John Morgan, lives 30 years as a Sioux named Man Called Horse. In 1874, gold is discovered in the Black Hills, on tribal land guaranteed to the Sioux in the Laramie Treaty of 1868. Settlers pour in and White provocateurs try to prompt the Sioux to break the treaty (so that all-out war with the US forces will result in the land no longer being under Sioux control). They murder and make it look like Indians were responsible. Man Called Horse helps maintain calm among the tribe, but when tragedy befalls him, it's left to his son Koda and Koda's lover, a Crow named Red Wing, to devise a strategy to keep the argonauts at bay and the Black Hills sacred.

33

River's Crossing : 15 years after the death of their parents, Abigail is now living with her older sister Lydia. Odelia and Hugo were invited and flown in to train and fight in a local gym. Barber is a brawler, as well as a drummer in a band fronted by Stardust. These are lives crossing paths and media's within a story, told in an unusual manner.

The History of University of Kentucky Basketball : Since its inception in 1902, the University of Kentucky Basketball program has amassed 1,948 wins against only 608 losses for a staggering 76.2% winning percentage. No other school has as many wins or a greater all-time winning percentage, not UCLA, not UNC, Indiana or Duke. Kentucky's accomplishments don't end there however. 7 National Championships, 13 Final Four Appearances, 46 NCAA Tournament appearances, 139 NCAA Tournament Games, 43 SEC Championships and 25 SEC Tournament Championships have clearly established Kentucky basketball as one of the greatest programs in all of sports in the U.S., college or professional. These impressive numbers are very much part of the tradition and glory that surround University of Kentucky Basketball. However, just as much a part of this tradition is the players and coaches who have guided the program over the years. Legendary coaches like Adolph Rupp, Joe B. Hall, Rick Pitino and Tubby Smith. Players such as Louie Dampier, Dan Issell, Pat Riley, Jack "Goose" Givens, Kyle Macy, Sam Bowie, Kenny Walker, John Pelphrey, Rex Chapman, Jamal Mashburn, Ron Mercer, Tony Delk, Tayshaun Prince, Keith Bogans and many more. 85

Supergirl & the Bloody Traces of Stargirl : The plot of the story is that Stargirl is bitten by a bat and becomes a vampire and goes on a killing spree in a 10 year span dating back to 2004. The story then shifts and takes us to the present time which is 2014 and word on the street is that Stargirl is on the prowl again in the town of Lakeland and also witnesses have said that she has been hiding out at the now closed off Mark Luthor's Pool house for the last 6 months and when a law enforcement agent or other superheroines go to the area to search the grounds, she bites them and drowns them in the pool. So far in that 6 month span, 2 law enforcement agents and 11 superheroines have been Stargirl's fatal victims. It has baffled law enforcement for some time. Supergirl aka Jacklene Kent , mild mannered reporter is new to this story cause she had been out of the country for the last 6 months covering the Olympics and the G2 summit for her newspaper. She gets wind of it on first day back and determined to put a stop to the killings and try to convert Stargirl back to her normal self. Now my plan for this video is that she teams up with a special military agent name Melissa Bennett. Now, the idea is for Supergirl and Agent Bennett to put a stop to it and try cure and restore Stargirl back to her normal self. But, little do they know that Stargirl's has something up her sleeve for both of them. What will happen to all 3? You'll have to watch and see for yourself.

Dale Evans: Queen of the West : Just saw this ep on my Roku in Pilot TV site. It was fairly good .. Had Dale as a Annie Oakley type. No Roy in this. Pat Brady is cast as a DUMB sidekick on a Mule. Maybe where Festus got Idea for his riding one. Lots of action and shooting in this ep. I think it would have been a great series. A different horse than Buttermilk too. Almost like Trigger doing riding tricks and stunts. She was completely different in the Roy Rogers Show than this , So Roy would stand out on his. Wishing this could have made into a series.. Interesting to watch.. Was made 2 years before I was born by the way.

88

But during a mining venture, the bitterness escalates. Is Bill to be set against his own adoptive father?

95

A Loving Gentleman : This is the love story of renowned writer William Faulkner and his muse and "Hollywood wife," Meta Carpenter, which continued for eleven years during Hollywood's heyday in the 1930's and 1940's. Faulkner, already famous and critically praised as a novelist but unable to meet financial obligations, reluctantly accepts a writing assignment in Hollywood for film director Howard Hawks. He leaves behind in Oxford, Mississippi his modest plantation home, Rowen Oak, his alcoholic wife, Estelle, a young daughter, Jill, and two stepchildren. In Hollywood he meets and is immediately attracted to Hawks's young and charming script girl, Meta Carpenter. When he discovers she had also grown up in the Southern Delta like himself, he becomes further captivated. Meta is reticent about Bill being a married man and Bill feels guilty about betraying his family commitments, but their attraction is so strong that they fall into a passionate love affair. Wife Estelle soon joins Bill in Hollywood, and she picks up clues that her husband is being unfaithful but doesn't know who the other woman might be. Bill and Meta continue to meet secretly even while Estelle is in Hollywood. He even brings his daughter, Jill, with him when he and Meta go on swimming dates or on picnics. Meta feels awkward and remorseful, but her love for Bill grows ever stronger, and she throws caution to the wind. Meta discovers she's pregnant with Bill's baby. Without informing Bill she is pregnant, Meta has an abortion. Bill, later learning of this, goes on a drinking binge that ends with him having to enter a dry-out sanitarium. Meta realizes that Bill is not taking steps to get a divorce, primarily due to Estelle's threats to banish him from ever seeing his daughter again and ruining him financially and socially in Mississippi. Meta resolves to break off their affair and succumbs to a marriage proposal from Wolfgang Rebner, a respected and talented Jewish pianist. She travels with him to his homeland in Germany. But the fear of the rise of Hitler and personally witnessing the upsurge in persecution of Jews make them flee back to America. Meta's marriage becomes rocky partly because of Rebner's behavior due to his insecurity and disillusionment in finding work in the studios, and also because Meta realizes that her love for Bill is still powerful. They agree to a separation. Meta continues to work steadily at the studios but finds it insulting for women doing a job such as hers in the industry being called script "girls." She organizes and wins a hard fought battle against the studio system that results in the position to be now referred to as "Script Supervisor." Bill, feeling miserable at being deprived of time to write his novels and being forced to write what he considers second-rate screenplays just to keep sending money back to Mississippi, begins to put a strain on his relationship with Meta. He knows that staying in Hollywood will destroy him as a serious novelist, and he must make the difficult choice between staying in Hollywood with Meta or returning to his home in Oxford, Mississippi. William Faulkner returns to Rowan Oak to write some of his finest novels and eventually winning the Nobel Prize in Literature. Meta Carpenter continues working in Hollywood as script supervisor. Bill and Meta continued to correspond and remained friends until his death in 1962.

Trails of Danger : The correct title of this film (on the film, the posters, the lobby cards and the press book) is "Trails of Danger" while "Trails of Peril" was a working title that appeared in a trade publication that was printed before the film was released as "Trails of Danger. " Consequently, some sources think, because "Trails of Peril" appears in a print source as the title, that "Trails of Peril" is the actual title because that title also appears in an often-unreliable catalog, put together by file clerks who copied it from the original trade source. It isn't. Whatever. Anyway, Bob Bartlett returns from WWI with little but medals, but is anxious to do something significant before facing his father, U.S. Marshal Bartlett. Bob saves Mary Martin and her father John Martin from an attack by two outlaws, and he later finds a beautiful horse that belongs to a bandit, although he (Bob, not the horse) doesn't know it. The horse doesn't seem to know it either. First rattle out of the box, Bob, now riding Starlight, gets into trouble the next day when the stagecoach arrives, as the horse is identified as the one rode by the leader, Butch Coleman, of the bandits who held up the stage. Bob makes his escape, evades the posse led by Sheriff Johnson and sets out to capture Coleman and his gang and win the heart of Mary. He does so, and as he claims the reward and Mary, he is discovered as the son of the Marshal paying the reward.

Men of the Desert : Some of the most sanguinary feuds in America have been fought out, not in the mountains of the south, but on the deserts of the great west, where cattlemen and sheepmen often dealt out death to each other with the aid of their old friends, Winchester and Colt. Such a feud is in progress between the men of the desert when Jack, a nomadic cowboy, wanders into the scene. He is outspoken against the outlawry, and the sheriff, in jest, hands him his badge and asks him if he can do any better. Jack accepts the challenge and arrests one of the most recent slayers. The latter's companions immediately storm the jail and rescue him. In the fight Jack is desperately wounded. May, a girl of the ranch, finds the cowboy half dead and hides him in an isolated hut while she nurses him back to health. The feudists discover Jack's hiding place and attack him. He and the girl escape, and while Jack holds a narrow canyon against his pursuers the girl dashes across the desert in search of aid. Jack's life seems as good as lost when May returns with the opposing feudists, who save him. The wedding between Jack and the girl on the battleground reconciles the feudists and restores order on the desert.

The Farmer : Kyle Martin returns as a silver star hero, but realizes running a one man farm is not profitable, and the bank wants to foreclose, despite returning as a hero. Then a gambler Johnny has a car accident near his farm, in which Kyle saves his life, in which Johnny offers him 1,5000 dollars, which still isn't enough to save the farm. Then when Johnny past-post on a horse race for over $50,000, angering local mobster Passini as he and his three henchmen kills Johnny's bodyguard and then blinds Johnny's eyes with acid to "make a example out of him", Johnny asks his girl Betty to ask Kyle to kill Prassini and his men one by one for $50,000, the money he needs to save his farm, which sets the path for revenge.

South of Sonora : Bill Tracy, a Cattleman's Protective Association agent, working undercover, on his way to Sonora, a town dominated by rustlers, saves Betty Carter from a situation, but her rancher father---believing Blackie's suggestion that Bill is a rustler---forbids her to see him. Bill and his pal, Heinie Schmaltz, rescue each other from various plots and ambushes by the rustler, and eventually discover that Blackie, Carter's foreman, is the leader of the rustlers.

154 Feud of the Trail : The basic plot is the standard lawman-hero-poses-as-dead-lookalike-outlaw in order to help dead-outlaw's father and sister from losing their ranch to neighboring outlaws, but lots of weird things (even more than usual in a Sam Katzman production)happen along the way, beginning with the cast order as shown on the film; the 4th and 5th billed Jim Corey (misspelled as Correy) and Dick Alexander (known by and billed as such more times than he was as Richard)play a couple of brothers as part of a family gang obviously inspired by Ma Barker and her sons, and only have a couple of lines of dialogue in the whole film, while Roger Williams (as Lance, the only Holcomb brother with a given name) is billed below his two non-talking brothers. Lafe McKee, a major character who talks all the time, goes uncredited, as does director Bob Hill (the name he used on more films than he did Robert F. Hill), who plays the Protective Association Chief, but Hill, while appearing in many of the films he directed seldom took an actors credit. Most of the Victory Pictures produced by Sam Katzman starring Tom Tyler were marked by the unusually small amount of performers seen on screen,and were usually filmed with only two interiors (which set decorator Fred Preble would disguise from film to film by hanging the same set of checkered drapes in different places) and featured a lot of riding around outdoors, and no town scenes. Sam knew if there were no town scenes, he didn't have to pay a dollar or two for people walking across the street or hanging out in the saloon or rent any extra horses to tie to the hitching posts. For reasons unknown, since it had nothing to do with the plot and advanced it not one whit, Jerry McLain (Milburn Morante), who plays the lawman sidekick to Tom Wade (Tom Tyler) and McLain is actually the one who shoots Jack Granger (also played by Tyler), rides to a town and sings (dubbed) "The Old Chisholm Trail" for a bartender, a piano player and a dozen or so barflies, all of which must have cost Sam at least fifty extra dollars. Morante and Tyler also sing the song (neither one dubbed and should have been) on the trail, and later on Harley Wood (billed as Harlene) plays it on the piano at the ranch and sings nicely, while Tyler sings along in a losing effort. Same song three and a half times in a Victory production is about three and a half more than the norm. The half comes when Morante, after jawing with the bartender, tells the piano player to play it again (Katzman had the piano player on a day rate and probably wanted to get his money's worth) and Morante's dubbed voice takes over again. Plus, the brother-sister relationship when Sheila thinks Tom is her brother is more than a little cozy to begin with, and heats up some when she learns that Tom is not her brother, even though he is his exact double. Somewhere, somebody forgot to shoot the scene where John Granger (Lafe McKee) explains that Sheila is not really Jack's sister, but had been adopted by Pa Granger when her parents were wiped out by "injuns" or something. Most likely blew that part of the budget, intended for that scene, on the unneeded barroom scene. A man who's a dead ringer for the leader of an outlaw gang kills the gang leader, then takes his place to try to bring the gang to justice. The Holcombs are after the Granger ranch as they know there is gold on it. When Tom Wade arrives just as Lance Holcomb shoots John Granger, he is mistaken for his look-alike Jack Granger, the outlaw he has just killed. He continues the hoax by posing as Jack as he and sidekick Jerry go after the Holcombs.

The Purifiers : The story of martial arts clubs who have created their own city infrastructure after tiring of government initiatives. Responding to the greed and corruption creeping into the other clubs, headed by capitalist-wannabe Moses, The Purifiers battle to maintain the successful system which has rid the city of crime and violence. "If there's trouble, we get outta there. Those we get separated, it's up to them to find their way home." With these rules, John and his team of warriors who call themselves the Purifiers set out into the Central Zones with other gangs for a meeting with rich capitalist warrior Moses. Moses and his associates believe that with the upcoming election, it's time for a new leader to work within the establishment and create a new world of order. And once he's on the inside, he promises the gangs who unite alongside him true power, profit and freedom. However, the Purifiers are a self-contained unit that fights chaos and crime by working outside the realms of the law to preserve the balance of power. They're totally against this concept of unity, as it goes against everything they stand for. But Moses makes it quite clear that those who aren't with him, are against him and his visions and must leave immediately. The Purifiers do so and before they know it, the various gangs, ranging from the Angels, to the Pumas, to the Eels are now trying to rub them out, as they try to make way to their own turf. The gangs want a piece of the action that Moses has offered and each will get their slice of the pie, if and only if, the Purifiers are stamped out of existence because they're an obstacle at this point. However, Moses is merely using this as a test to see what the Purifiers are made of, as he sees potential in John and wants him to work alongside with Moses to realize his goal. As the Purifiers get split up, they decide to go back into the Central Zones to find Raz (the new recruit) and Sol (John's second-in-command), two of their own who went missing in action at the time of the chase. As Li, John's home-girl, tries to piece the puzzle together, she fears that someone within their ranks has turned traitor and is working with Moses to set the Purifiers up for their downfall. While clashing with the various other gangs who are determined to wipe them out, allies will become enemies, truths will be revealed and loyalties will be tested. The question is will the Purifiers still be united and standing as one when the carnage is over?

The Ghost of Crossbone Canyon : One of the trade paper reviewers carped that this film's major fault was its choppy continuity that has it divided into two separate segments that have no apparent connection. Trade paper reviewers were seldom accused of being overly perceptive, as there was actually a connection to The Wild Bill Hickok television series as this "film" was comprised of two of the television episodes and the public could then line up and pay money at a theatre to see what they could have seen for free at home...if they had a television set, which a large number of the attendees didn't have in 1953. The first segment has Wild Bill (Guy Madison) and deputy Jingles (Andy Devine) "helping" a town boss collect the tax money and then keep him from stealing it, and then they ride on to a ghost town ("The Ghost Town" TV episode) to track down some stolen money. While the TV series rates way low on any scale, it and the features pasted from it are far better than any of the spaghetti westerns Madison found himself in later in his career. But, then, what isn't?

Overland with Kit Carson : Western settlers are being driven off their homesteads and ranches by a combination of Indian raids and attacks by bands of mysterious outlaws. The Song the Zombie Sang : Nils Bekh was once the world's greatest living musician and composer. With the ultracembalo, a musical system that uses a neural interface and data gloves, he created and performed some of the greatest works of music in history. He died an icon, his name and music deeply etched into the story of humanity. But Bekh the musician continues on. He is reanimated nightly to perform for an adoring public. In death, Nils Bekh has the immortality that before only a man's work could achieve without him. Outside the circles of wealth and privilege that flock to his concerts is Rhoda, a gifted young music student in the infancy of her own career. Driven to the point of obsession, she has few friends- most everyone sees her as arrogant and self absorbed. But Rhoda doesn't pay them any attention; both slave and master to her art, the only things that matter to her are the melodies and compositions that constantly swirl about in her head. On the verge of an enormous creative breakthrough, her academic career crumbles around her and she lashes out at the few friends she has. Feeling frustrated and hopeless, Rhoda is determined to meet and confront Bekh, whose performances she finds soulless and whose success she envies. Late one night after one of his concerts Rhoda breaks into the hall where he lays, awaiting another call to his half life, another call to perform. When she finally comes face to face with the great composer, their meeting turns into a pivotal night for both her and the legendary icon.

Detours: The Film : Sweet, hard-working Joan Malloy never expected to end up divorced, bitter, and without a home at age thirty. Meanwhile, her long-term secret admirer turned power lawyer, Jackson Brooks, never expected to have another chance to win her heart. Unexpected and inconvenient obligations send this unlikely pair on a rushed road trip from Los Angeles to Florida with Joan's grandmother's "priceless" antique trunk in the backseat. Jackson sees it as a 2,012 mile-long opportunity to convince Joan of what he's known since age thirteen: they're meant to be together. Meanwhile, other things weigh on Joan's mind, like how her seemingly happy marriage just came to an unceremonious end, leaving her without a home or any sense of hope. On the wild open road, nothing goes quite as planned, but as Jackson and Joan speculate what treasures could be locked inside the mysterious trunk, they discover extraordinary truths in one another, including a secret Joan's been carrying far too long. A fresh take on the buddies-on-the-road romantic comedy, DETOURS bursts with heart, humor, and cheer-worthy moments, proving that unexpected, undesirable bumps in the road can sometimes lead to something wonderful.

Summer in the Vineyard : In the sequel to Autumn in the Vineyard, Frankie and Nate are now a couple and are gearing up for Summer Fest, the town's largest event. They can't wait to reveal their new wine and put the vineyard on the map. But when an issue with the wine puts things in jeopardy, both the relationship and the partnership will be put to the test. It's the first summer season at Sorrento Vineyards outside of St. Madeleine, California for new co-owners Frankie Baldwin and Nate DeLuca, who were able to overcome the longstanding business feud between the two families and their own animosity to become not only business partners but to fall in love with each other. The general division of responsibilities has Frankie being chief vintner, her goal to produce a Cabernet Sauvignon this season equal to if not better than her award winning wine from the previous season using grapes from her father's vineyard, it more important now to stake a name that is solely Sorrento, while Nate, using his Ph.D. in Science, is in charge of the vineyard and growing the best grapes possible. They hope to stake Sorrento's reputation under their ownership at the upcoming Taste of St. Madeleine, an annual end of summer festival hosted by a local vineyard, at great expense, to pair food prepared by a hired professional chef by each vineyard with the wine produced by that vineyard. Against tradition of hiring a professional, Nate, a home cook, wants to use his culinary skills to match what is sure to be Frankie's sublime Cabernet Sauvignon for this year. A last minute problem leads to Nate making the unilateral decision for Sorrento to host this year's festival. The problem in not clearing it with Frankie is that this year's batch of wine has not aged to the point that it will be ready for the festival, serving a substandard wine or not having a wine to serve as host which would ruin Sorrento's name and thus bust them at the bank. She is reluctant to tell Nate the problem as she tries to figure out a way to hasten the aging process. Another unilateral decision by Nate has the potential to ruin this season's crop of grapes which would further jeopardize their business viability. Frankie and Nate's relationships, both business and personal, may not be able to survive these issues, especially as it exposes fundamental problems in the way they deal with each other. Meanwhile, Marco DeLuca, Nate's younger womanizing brother, has his eye set on Frankie's visiting cousin, up and coming pastry chef Lexi Moreau, a relationship between the two which would be against Frankie's wishes. However, Marco may truly be changing his stripes as he sees Lexi as different than anyone else he's ever met. He just needs to convince Frankie, Lexi and to some extent himself.

Kurt Busch the Outlaw : Many things have been said about NASCAR Sprint Cup Series driver Kurt Busch - champion, competitor, racer... enigma. There might be one more as well - outlaw. There's much to be learned from Busch's story. He started his Sprint Cup Series journey in 2001, breaking out in 2002 with four victories and more than $6.2 million in total earnings. He scored another four race triumphs the next season, building a mass of energy that pushed him towards the sport's ultimate prize in 2004 - the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series Championship. In 2006, the Las Vegas native moved over to Penske Racing's famous No. 2 Miller Lite Dodge, becoming the heir apparent to Rusty Wallace's Hall of Fame legacy. Kurt Busch was at the top of his game and in line to become the next NASCAR luminary - a time of great personal triumph. "The documentary, which addresses the majority of the 2012 racing season, will give viewers an honest and accurate portrayal through the view of a different lens," said Busch, of the show. "The behind-the-scenes footage will also entertain and educate the SPEED audience about my private and public sides." Since then however, Busch's career has taken a different turn. Plagued by well-documented incidents both on and off the track, he's been forced to re-evaluate his career and rebuild the momentum he once had. "It's that old game that I played when I was a kid out in the desert, we'd find a big dirt mound and it was called, 'King of the Hill,'" said Busch, in Kurt Busch The Outlaw. "And you stood up top and people tried to come up and grab your foot and yank you down. But when you're there, the view is great."

The Sagebrush Family Trails West : Begin with setting the record straight for those uninformed sources that insist on tagging this film as a Producers Releasing Corporation entry. It was produced by Sigmund Neufeld's Producers Pictures Corporation and distributed by Producers Distributing Corporation before both became known as PRC (producing and distributing) a few months later in 1940. The PRC name did not yet exist when this film was made, nor does it appear on any of the prints or advertising connected with this film. Neufeld produced this one as the first of a proposed series of films featuring his B-western version of M-G-M's Hardy Family. Heading the cast was 13-year-old World's Champion Junior Cowboy named Bobby Clack, who was well known by that name so Neufeld, for reasons unknown since his use of Clack was to cash in on Clack's rodeo reputation (who had already appeared in two films as Bobby Clack), promptly changed his name to Bobby Clark. Go figure. The film has Bobby Sawyer, 13-year-old World's Champion Junior Cowboy and star of Sawyer's Greater Attractions medicine show, averting the robbery of a bank in Halfway, Texas and the impressed and grateful citizens induce Bobby's parents, Doc and Minerva Sawyer to settle in the town, over the protests of daughter Nellie, who is determined to drag them to the "big city" where she plans on becoming a great star of the theatre. Crafty Lem Gorman, editor of the town newspaper and secret "brain" behind the gang of robbers terrorizing the community, seeing Nellie's attraction for young deputy sheriff Jim Barton, sells the Sawyers a ranch which belongs to his lieutenant Bart Wallace. The ranch is situated over an abandoned mine that serves as the gang's hiding place of their loot. Gorman tells the gang that Barton will not search the ranch where Nellie makes her home. Gorman hadn't figured on Doc Sawyer setting up a laboratory in the hen house situated above the mine and causing an explosion.

248

Fifty Miles to Mexico : After a botched job nearly leads to his death, a career criminal learns his longtime girlfriend is pregnant. Desperate to provide a better life for their unborn child, she convinces him to reunite with their old gang for one last heist and the biggest payday of their lives. But this tenuous truce amongst thieves is a powder keg of old grudges, mixed allegiances, and hidden agendas, which leave the entire robbery teetering on a knife-edge. As the plan begins to unravel, the gang is pushed to the brink and must risk everything to stay alive.

249

Raiders of Sunset Pass : World War II is raging and the manpower shortage has hit the range since every able-bodied cowboy of military age is off fighting for Uncle Sam. Dad Mathews, a rancher with a huge government contract order for beef, has trouble with the cattle rustlers, led by Henry Judson and Lefty Lewis, who are taking advantage of the situation to steal his herds. John Paul Revere, Special State Investigator, arrives, and upon meeting Mathews' daughter, Betty, gets the idea of recruiting the hard-riding daughters of the district into the WAPS, an organization which will be to the cattle country what the WACS and WAVES are to the Army and Navy. He trains them in military procedure and provides them with radio sending-and-receiving sets. Johnny's sidekick, Frog Millhouse, finds himself the possessor of a "walkie-talkie" which he considers just a "doo-dad" at first, but which is instrumental in the end, in helping Johnny and the WAPS trap the gang of rustlers in their hideout.

For the Love of Penny Whistler : For the Love of Penny Whistler Combining the drama and impact of serious world events and politics, the film brings together two people from conflicting societies and observes their journey to discover their identity and that of the society in which they were raised. Dafina is a young Eastern European educated woman who wants to change the world using her pacifist ideals. In the turmoil of her life and losing her dear father, a chance encounter changes her life forever. Griffin is a typical millionaire playboy with an excessive lifestyle to match. Also fatherless, he deeply searches for direction in his otherwise pointless existence. Taut relationships with his sister Aspen and her boyfriend Alex enable him to believe his lavish lifestyle, disconnected tenderness and liberal aggression towards others is not only acceptable but required. The original book is compared to The Great Gatsby (F. Scott Fitzgerald) and has been adapted for cinema by Ilana Rein and the late British director, Ken Russell. "Set against a background of international conflict, this is a clever and ingenious novel about love, loss and stolen identity. Huxley has an admirable grasp of structure and character." Dame Beryl Bainbridge DBE "Pitched somewhere between the drama of TV's Dynasty and the pampered indolence of F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Beautiful and the Damned, Jane Huxley's second novel begins in the world of the super rich and privileged... A bittersweet chronicle set against a backdrop of contemporary anxiety and personal weakness." Erica Sissons - Daily Express "Glitter and gutter...lovelorn, war-torn. A compelling read." Simon Cowell

The Return of Wild Bill : To get possession of choice ranch lands, Matt and Jake Kilgore frame Sam Griffin for stealing cattle from Lige Saunders, set themselves up as vigilantes and then hang him. Then they urge Ol' Mitch, who has taken in Griffin's daughter, Sammy Lou, to take revenge against Saunders. Turning about, the brothers incite Saunders to go gunning first. Neither rancher falls for the trap; Saunders because Kate Kilgore, the only decent member of the family, tells him about her brothers' plan. Saunders sends for his son, Wild Bill Saunders, the most feared gunman in the southwest. Later, Jake Kilgore pretends to want to buy the Saunders place and, when ordered off, he shoots Saunders and leaves behind a gun that will incriminate Old Mitch. Bill arrives a few minutes later, learns from his dying father what happened and takes after Jake. A running gun fight ends in a canyon where the two men struggle hand to hand, and Jake falls dead from a bullet from his own gun intended for Bill. Meanwhile, Matt and his gang ride to Ole Mitch's place, intending to lynch him for killing Saunders, Bill gets there first and drives them off. Bart, one of the henchmen, drops behind to spy on the newcomer. He hears Bill tell Kate, who had also come to warn Ole Mitch, about Jake's death. Bart hurries to tell his boss, and when Kate returns home Matt beats her, ties her to a chair, and then sends two of his henchmen, posing as deputy sheriffs, to arrest Bill for the death of Jake. Bill, over the protests of Sammy Lou, gives up his guns and the henchmen start him off for what is to be a rendezvous with a lynching party. Kate gets free and rides to get help from Old Mitch, Cannonball and other ranchers. Bill is about to be hanged when Kate, Sammy Lou, Mitch and the others arrive. In the exchange of bullets, Kate is killed by her brother Matt, who escapes. Bill pursues him and kills him in a gun duel. Peace is restored to the community and Bill settles down on the ranch he inherited from his father, with Sammy Lou not far from his side. When Matt Kilgore and his men frame and then hang an innocent man, Lige Saunders sends for his son Wild Bill who arrives to find his father shot by Matt's brother. When the brother is killed in his fight with Bill, Matt sends two fake Deputies to arrest Bill whom he then plans to hang. But Matt's sister, attracted to Bill, overhears the plan and rides for help.

Code of the Range : In this Charles Starrett western that WAS NOT produced by Peter B. Kyne and was solely written by Ford Bebee, although some sources attribute the story to Peter B. Kyne because, with his permission and as a selling angle, the title shown on the film and all of the posters is "Peter B. Kyne's CODE OF THE RANGE." The use of his name was Mr. Kyne's only contribution. Ford Beebe's "original screenplay" (he had used it before) finds the cattlemen, headed by "Calamity" Parker, opposing the use of their range lands by sheep herders, with cattlemen Lee Jamison and Ed Randall in the dissenting minority and they offer sheepman Angus McLeod free grazing privileges. Saloon owner Barney Ross offers to keep the sheepmen off of the range and out of town if each cattleman will pay $500. They agree after he promises there will be no bloodshed. Ross then visits bank clerk Quigley, who Ross knows has stolen bank funds to cover his gambling losses at Ross' saloon, and forces him to forge the name of bank president Adams on a foreclosure notice on Jamison's ranch. Ross then buys Jamison's property thereby making it impossible for the sheep-herders to use the land for grazing. Calamity's daughter Janet works at the bank and is engaged to Jamison but they have parted because of a quarrel over the feud. But when Jamison learns that his property has been "legally" stolen, Mary, who suspects Ross and Quigley, aids him by wiring Adams to return immediately. Jamison, suspecting that Ross will have his henchmen take Adams off the stagecoach and kill him, beats the gang to the stagecoach, takes Adams and hides him. But Jamison has to flee town when Ross tells the townsmen that Jamison took Adams off the stage and killed him. But he will return.

Age of Wonders : The game has a single-player campaign, playable from two sides (more campaigns have been made by the community since release), and many maps, both included and user-created that can be played in Hotseat mode, over a LAN, on the Internet, or by email (PBEM). Up to 12 players can participate in a single game, depending on the map. Players have an isometric view of the map, which consists of hexagonal tiles, and can have up to three layers (surface, caverns, and depths). Units are arranged into groups (also known as parties or stacks) of up to eight units; a single such group occupies one tile. Cities occupy between one and four tiles, and other structures generally occupy a single tile. Each player leads a certain race. There are 12 races available in the game, though not all of them may be present on every map, and of those which are, not all may be playable. List of races includes traditional fantasy Elves, Lizardmen, Humans, Goblins, Dark Elves, Undead, Orcs, Dwarves and Halflings, as well as several unique ones such as Frostlings, Azracs, and Highmen. Races, as well as units not belonging to any specific race, such as dragons and giants, have a certain alignment, which can be good, neutral, or evil. According to their alignment and certain other factors, cities and independent units of one race can be friendly or hostile towards another race. This can manifest itself in different ways; for example, an orc city is not likely to surrender to the elves, and if conquered, may revolt unless there is a strong military presence in it to oppress the population. Units of hostile races forced to fight alongside each other in a single group will have lower morale, and are more likely to desert. Race relations can be improved by acts of goodwill towards other races, such as upgrading their cities, or hampered by razing, looting, or migrating cities belonging to that race. Diplomacy can also affect this and even an alliance with one race might affect the relation of another race. There are also several spells which have a global effect on race relations. There are two resources, gold and mana. Gold is used to build units, buy heroes, cities and spells (in Wizard Towers), upgrade cities. Mana is used to cast and research spells and use altars.

Helped by ex-printer Sergeant Harris and with his friend Jack Pearson as his assistant, he sets up the Wipers Times - the name coming from the soldiers' pronunciation of the town Ypres. Despite disapproval from officious Colonel Howfield but with backing from sympathetic General Mitford they produce twenty-three issues of a satirical magazine - its articles represented on screen in black and white - which boosts morale and even gets mentioned in the Tatler. The press is destroyed by a German shell but another is found and the paper's title changed to fit in with wherever the regiment is deployed. Pearson and Roberts are both awarded gallantry medals but when Roberts is only offered the job of crossword compiler by the sub-editor he moves to Canada as a prospector while Pearson marries and opens a hotel in Argentina. Both survived into the 1960s. When Captain Fred Roberts discovered a printing press in the ruins of Ypres, Belgium in 1916, he decided to publish a satirical magazine called The Wipers Times - "Wipers" being army slang for Ypres. Full of gallows humor, The Wipers Times was poignant, subversive and very funny. Produced literally under enemy fire and defying both authority and gas attacks, the magazine proved a huge success with the troops on the Western Front. It was, above all, a tribute to the resilience of the human spirit in the face of overwhelming adversity. In his spare time Roberts also managed to win the Military Cross for gallantry. Discovering a printing press in the ruins of Ypres, Belgium, Captain Roberts decides to publish a satirical magazine called The Wipers Times. 303

Futbaal: The Price of Dreams : When the Iranian National Soccer team comes to America to play the U.S. team, BABAK is their captain. He is the young, handsome face of the team with the quick moves of a lightweight boxer. Simply stated, he is the star. Babak's older brother MOURAD (once a fine player in his own right - but never having the talent of Babak) is attached to the team as they tour the States - perhaps only to handle his brother. The two are very close, but differ ideologically in that Mourad is much more fundamental. The story begins with the Iranian team playing the U.S. squad in Los Angeles. We learn that Babak had been approached months earlier in Iran about possibly staying in the U.S. to play for the local professional team. Babak receives a one million dollar signing bonus to join the Los Angeles Vipers pro team just prior to the end of their regular season and help their chances in the playoffs. Mourad is incensed by his brother's decision and attempts to explain that Babak is compromising his life on many levels - patriotically, religiously, and most importantly, the abandonment of family. Babak can never go home. Babak meets SORAYA, a beautiful, charming Iranian/American who's an up and coming reporter for a national Cable Sports Channel and the sister of the Vipers owner. The two young people have an immediate attraction. Her brother, DR. SHAFAIAN, is a very powerful figure in the local Iranian community. Although he professes to be a friend to Babak, until the end we are unaware of where Dr. Shafaian's loyalties lie. The pressures of a new country, a new soccer team, his brother's cynicism, and the involvement with Soraya all come to a head as the Vipers play the Dallas Panthers for the Championship. Adding to the anxiety is a blackmail plot - threatening to imprison Mourad and the rest of his family should Babak stay, or perhaps be imprisoned himself should he try to return to Iran. This compelling immigrant's story is how one's life is impacted by the decisions of life, family, religion, and morality that face every person chasing the American Dream.

Investigating, Dr. Zarkov discovers a spaceship from Ming's kingdom on Mongo spreading a dust across Earth's atmosphere, which Zarkov correctly deduces is causing the plague. Accompanied by Flash Gordon and Dale Arden, Zarkov drives off the ship and hurries to the friendly Mongo kingdom of Arboria, to enlist the aid of Prince Barin. At Barin's palace, they meet Queen Fria and Count Korro of the ice-kingdom Frigia. Helping them rescue a Frigian general from Ming's palace, they learn the nature of Ming's plague-dust and its antidote, found only in Frigia. With Fria's blessings they fly to Frigia to obtain the antidote, accompanied by Arboria captains Ronal, Roka and Turan. But Ming learns this, sends his own officers Torch and Thong to stop them with raygun fire and an army of humanoid robots... This time he's made an unauthorized humanitarian relief flight ... dropping sacks of rice to starving Kurds. To the press, he's a hero. The Pentagon would like to court martial him, but can't because the President wants the highly photogenic media hero by his side--at least until after the next election. So Cross has a new assignment. He's to carry the "black bag"-- the President's high-tech briefcase containing the "go codes" and communications computer for launching America's nuclear ICBM arsenal in case of national emergency. It should be a piece of cake, but... On his first day on the job, a team of mercenaries steal the briefcase and drop Cross off a tenth floor balcony. Miraculously, he not only survives, but pursues the terrorists in a hijacked taxi. The ensuing car chase careens through the alleyways and streets of Chicago, up the ramps of a parking garage and then, unexpectedly, continues over the rooftops of the adjacent buildings! When the taxi takes a fiery plunge off one of the buildings, the mercenaries think they've seen the last of him ... but Cross has bailed out and manages to stowaway on the helicopter that plucks them, and the black bag, from the rooftops, into the night sky and onwards to their final target... United States Intercontinental Ballistic Missile Facility K-7. Disguised as one of the terrorists, Cross slips into the missile silo as the crack team murders the silo personnel and takes over launch control using the secret codes contained in the black bag. Led by ex-Marine Colonel Douglas Murphy, who went "missing in action" during an undercover operation in Iraq, they launch a terrifying warning shot: a Peacekeeper nuclear missile that destroys Mount Rushmore! Only then does Murphy call the President and make his chilling demand. The President is to kill himself in front of a live television audience, or the two remaining nuclear missiles will be targeted on Washington D.C. Only Frank Cross, Joined by the surviving commander of the Missile Facility, Lieutenant Colonel Bernard Northrop, can stop the madness that threatens the President and millions of civilians. Cocos 1914: The Encounter Between HMAS Sydney and SMS Emden : SMS Emden was the second and final member of the Dresden class of light cruisers built for the Imperial German Navy (Kaiserliche Marine). She was launched in May 1908, and completed in July 1909. Emden was armed with ten 10.5 cm (4.1 in) guns and two torpedo tubes. Emden spent the majority of her career overseas in the German East Asia Squadron, based in Tsingtao, China. In 1913, she came under the command of Karl von Müller, who would captain the ship during her career in World War I. At the outbreak of hostilities, Emden captured a Russian steamer and converted her into the commerce raider Cormoran. Emden rejoined the East Asia Squadron, after which she was detached for independent raiding in the Indian Ocean. The cruiser spent nearly two months operating in the region, and captured nearly two dozen ships. Müller took Emden to raid the Cocos Islands, where he landed a contingent of sailors to destroy British facilities. There, Emden was attacked by the Australian cruiser HMAS Sydney. The more powerful Australian ship quickly inflicted serious damage and forced Müller to run his ship aground to prevent her from sinking. Out of a crew of 376, 133 were killed in the battle. Most of the survivors were taken prisoner, though the landing party, led by Hellmuth von Mücke commandeered an old schooner and eventually returned to Germany.

Meanwhile, the rival company is actively frustrating the East-West plans and forces Wade's stage-line road crew to quit work. Following a fight, Bob makes up his mind to help Wade and talks the men into rushing the last bridge through to completion in time for the government's test run.

The Legend of Earl Durand : The Legend Of Earl Durand was the story of a young child whose family lived near DuBois, Wyoming and made Earl live in a hut in the wild because they thought he had a contagious disease. When the local Aboriginal people discovered his plight, they took him under their wing so he grew up as a sort of wildman, completely able to live off the land. He was known as the "Robin Hood" of the West because he hunted game on Federal land (e.g. Yellowstone) which was very illegal and gave the meat to the poor. He was eventually arrested by a brand new warden fresh from Brooklyn and incarcerated. No jail could hold him. Eventually the National Guard mounted a gigantic posse to recapture him. Earl managed to integrate himself into their ranks and figured prominently in the fruitless search. The story of how John D Patterson found the tale is a series of incidents as gripping as the tale itself. John's son (of the same name) was one of the cinematographers of "The Sopranos".

340

The Beast of War : During the war in Afghanistan a Soviet tank crew commanded by a tyrannical officer find themselves lost and in a struggle against a band of Mujahadeen guerrillas in the mountains. He joins up with a group of settlers who need the protection that a man as tough and experienced as he is can provide. Unfortunately, the past has a way of catching up with you, and Josey is a wanted man. Josey Wales is a Southerner whose entire family were killed by a sadistic Union officer. He joins a band of guerrilla fighters who manage to avoid being captured. After the end of the war, they refuse to surrender, but their leader, Fletcher, negotiates a surrender allowing his men amnesty. Josey, however, refuses to join them. After his men arrive, they're executed. But when they learn that Josey is still out there, they order him hunted down and the man they send to get him is the man who killed his family. He eventually runs into a group of settlers and helps them get settled and negotiates a peaceful co-existence with the Indians. But he has a price on his head and every bounty hunter is out of get it. Josey Wales is a simple peasant with a peaceful life, but after his family is brutally murdered during the Civil War he becomes a Confederate soldier in order to revenge his wife and son. As the Civil War ends Josey refuses to surrender unlike most of his comrades. So Josey begins an outlaw life escaping from bounty hunters, Comanches and even an old comrade in his path towards his original aim: vengeance Josey Wales is a peaceful farmer in the days near the end of the Civil War. After his home is burned and his family murdered, he hardens into a human bullet - dedicated to destroying the renegades who took his "life." He joins a band of unreconstructed rebel guerilla fighters who continue to fight the Union - even after the official surrender of the Confederacy - an action which makes them, legally, outlaws. Josey is driven by vengeance, but after a while, that's not enough. Back before his own personal Holocaust, he had been a builder - of home, family, farm, and life. And no matter how much ice he's wrapped himself in, down inside there's still the soul of a living man. While Wales exists, he's pulled by this hidden yearning to Live. Each day offers him chances to remember, to assuage his yearning, to begin again. And the movie shows us how Josey Wales - a mere seeker of vengeance - learns to live again, rededicated to the values he chose so long ago.

354

After a disastrous robbery attempt in Plainfield, Texas, Lonnie goes back to Georgia. With both parents dead, Lonnie works the farm until the Lupman Brothers show up.

358

The Forty-Niners : "Tennessee" Matthews is a trader dealing in buffalo hides at his post situated on the North Platte River at Fort Laramie, Wyoming. There Jed Hawkins and his daughter Virginia are waiting for an escort for their wagon trail headed for California. "Widow" Melindy Spriggs is also with the train and has intentions of trapping Hawkins as her next husband, although his disposition to drink is very trying to her 'dry' ways. "Squaw" O'Hara, called such because he has a habit of taking up with Indian women (which may well be very politically incorrect now, but writer F. McGrew Willis did not name his villain such with an eye on the PC world of the future, and revisionist film history will not intrude here) is hired as the train's scout. O'Hara is one bad character indeed and his real vocation is misguiding wagon trains into traps so they can be looted. At the present time, O'Hara has taken up with a beautiful Indian girl named Lola who lives in a hut where O'Hara makes frequent visits and stores the booty from the many caravans he has betrayed, and has full intentions of doing the same with the Hawkins train. He may only be visiting to check on the inventory, but the pre-code days implication is that he considers Lola as part of the inventory. He and Matthews both fall in love with Virginia, but it is plain to see she prefers Matthews. She even sends him a rose. This displeases O'Hara so much that he beats up Lola out of frustration, and Matthews comes to her aid. He puts an arm around her to comfort her and, of course, that is when Virginia rounds the corner and jumps to the conclusion that Matthews is a two-timer in buckskin.(Which in the real world he might have been since Lola is about three numbers higher on a politically incorrect scale of 1-10 than Virginia is, and Lola ain't no ten herself.) Virginia covers her heartbreak by encouraging O'Hara, which is somewhat akin to pouring coal-oil kerosene on a fire, as O'Hara is not a man who waits for any signs of encouragement anyway. Comes the dawn , O'Hara begins to lead the settlers west to California, but has already notified his Indian friends just where he will lead them for an easy attack. But Matthews has other plans. Earlier Gordon DeMain (as Hawkins) gets drunk and sings "Oh, Melindy" to the widow, which marks the only time DeMain sang in a western film and the only time Fern Emmett was serenaded in a film, western or otherwise.

The Last Man on Earth : Uniquely blending romantic comedy & science fiction, "The Last Man On Earth" is about two teenagers exploring the nature and rejection of first love, when a cataclysmic event leaves them inexplicably stranded and alone. The Pocatello Kid : Ken Bledsoe/The Pocatello Kid escapes from prison while serving time for a crime committed by his twin brother, Jim Bledsoe. He heads for his brother's town to clear himself. Jim is now the sheriff and the tool of a gang of rustlers led by Pete Larkin. Sheriff Bledsoe provides a front for the outlaw's raids, and is also engaged to marry Pete's sister Mary, who is blissfully unaware of what goes on around her. Jim, hearing of Pocatello's escape, wants to leave the country but Larkin refuses to lose his "legal" protection and forces him to stay. But he loses it anyway when the gang catches the sheriff cheating at poker, and shoot him fatal like. Larkin only has a minute or so to worry about this unexpected turn of events as Pocatello comes riding up the road and knocks on the door. Larkin smoothly explains (or as smoothly as Dick Cramer can be) the situation and tells the wanted Pocatello he will provide sanctuary if Pocatello will pose as his departed-and-unmourned brother and become Sheriff Jim Bledsoe. Part of the agreement is that Pocatello must also continue the engagement to Mary Larkin, and Pocatello is not bothered at either proposal, especially when he gets a look at Mary. Pocatello, using his power as the sheriff, then embarks on a campaign to wipe out the Larkin gang, and to clear himself with the law.

Burke and Mary leave and establish unsuccessful claims away from the town, but gang leader Dan Middleton, attracted to Mary, sends Four-Ace Baker to convince her that Burke was in on Frank's murder. Mary believes Baker, and when Burke goes to town for a doctor after Mary is injured and then he is captured by Middleton's men, Mary leaves the claim with Middleton. Burke escapes and is able to find Middleton and Mary, then fights Middleton, who falls over a cliff. Burke then wins Mary's embrace.

The Salient : The Salient-- the half circle north and east of the Flemish city of Ypres-- was one of the most contested spots of the Great War. No more than five miles across, more than a million people were killed or wounded in this small area during four years of bitter fighting. Over time the Ypres Salient came to symbolize every description heard in conjunction with the Great War: sacrifice, courage, honor and duty just as much as chaos, slaughter, calamity and utter senselessness. The film is structured as a requiem , relying on music written for that purpose, mostly 19th century and by composers from both sides of the line. In stark contrast with the beauty of the music are the accounts of people who witnessed the Salient's horrors firsthand. The film thus pits the best of what Europe ever produced against its absolute worst. And so the film turns into a requiem not only for the fallen, but also for a city, an age and, quite possibly, for sanity itself.

Last of the Romantics : The saddest thing in life is to fall for someone you can never have. Welcome to the world of PARKER GRAVES. Consumed with his legacy, Parker spends his idle time reading obituaries and walking through the cemetery pondering his existence. Lacking inspiration, he looks to the past for answers. One day, his life takes a dramatic turn, when out of morbid curiosity he wanders anonymously into a funeral and becomes entranced by HOPE, a deceased ballerina. She immediately leaves an indelible imprint on his soul. Driven by her memory, Parker begins to question his path in life to the dismay of those closest to him. As his obsession grows for her, the shortcomings of his own life begin to magnify. Once a composer filled with great promise, Parker now toils away unfulfilled, writing jingles for an advertising agency. He can't get past the question, how does one make a living as an artist in today's society? He fares no better at his relationship with SARAH, a career girl caught up in the mores of our modern culture: appearance, money, and power. His best friend MILES watches this all unfold and attempts to help navigate Parker's ship through stormy waters. He proves no match for what is about to occur. To complicate matters, Parker befriends COLE, a homeless jazz pianist on the brink of self-destruction. The two forge an unlikely friendship with music as the catalyst. In symbiotic fashion, they begin to transform each other's lives. Parker has lost all patience with the "status quo world" he inhabits. On the outside, he appears to have lost a grip on reality. On the inside, he desperately longs for the beautiful, yet unattainable Hope. Having reached a crossroads in life, Parker has some critical decisions to make. Where does he go from here? Last of the Romantics challenges us to look within ourselves, past societies' conventions, to find our true calling in life. It's a gentle reminder, that if we follow our heart's desire, what we find just might surprise us.

Last Man in Dhaka Central: The Young Man Was, Part III : November 1975. The Summer of Tigers was a twilight moment for multiple Left possibilities. After the assassination of Salvador Allende, Bangladeshis worried about a similar fate. The end came much more abruptly; instead of a face-off inside a presidential palace, soldiers surprised the guard regiment raising the national flag at dawn. A brutal massacre killed the Prime Minister and his whole family, ending the country's first Socialist government. Three months later, two more coups followed, the last being a Maoist-inspired "soldiers' mutiny," which collapsed in the middle of betrayal and miscalculation. Caught up in this maelstrom was Peter Custers, a Dutch journalist who befriended the leader of the soldiers' mutiny, and had formed his own underground group, Movement for Proletarian Unity. Last Man unspools two stories in reversed sequences. In a series of newsreels and memos, we start at the end-with Peter's release. In the parallel story being told by Peter, his memories unravel over books, magazines, and clippings in his Leiden home, far away from the Bangladesh of 1975 or today. Peter, like many European Leftists of his generation (especially post-Herbert Marcuse's One-Dimensional Man), believed that even if the alienated masses trapped inside modernity were numbed into obedience, the revolutionary spirit might still be found "outside" modernity-in the prisons and ghettos of the First World, or in the cities and villages of the Third. It was a search for the latter that led him to drop out of a Ph.D. program at Johns Hopkins and move to Asia in 1973. As he found out, though, there was never a complete outside; a numbed proletariat could also doom Leftist uprisings in the vaunted Third World-as Godard also hinted in La Chinoise (1967). Last Man premiered at the 56th Venice Biennale, in "All the World's Futures" curated by Okwui Enwezor. The film intended to begin a long-term dialogue with Peter, but has now become an unintentional memorial: a few months after watching the film in Venice, Peter was making plans to fly to Lisbon for the festival premiere when he passed away unexpectedly. The film now speaks into a void; its last man has finally said goodbye. November 1975. After the assassination of Salvador Allende, Bangladeshis worried about a similar fate. Caught up in this maelstrom was Peter Custers, a Dutch journalist who befriended the leader of the soldiers' mutiny, and had formed his own underground group, Movement for Proletarian Unity.

The Wandering Day : During the 1920s international businessmen, politicians, and social reformers mounted a campaign to eliminate the irregularities in the Gregorian calendar -- the calendar that had become the standard in most nations around the world. The League of Nations, forerunner of the United Nations, became the venue for intense controversy over competing calendar proposals. Caught in the middle of the conflict was a handful of Jewish and Protestant dissenters - men who recognized that calendar reform would strike directly at the religious observance of all who maintain a weekly day of worship. Based on extensive archival research, The Wandering Day spotlights the clash of ideas about minority rights, freedom of conscience, and religious liberty. This is a documentary presentation that will resonate with all who are concerned about religious liberty issues today.

The Greatest Game Ever Played : The 1958 National Football League championship game between the Baltimore Colts and the New York Giants is known as "The Greatest Game Ever Played". It was the first (and only) professional football title game to ever result in an overtime, featured 17 men who were ultimately inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame and included wild swings of momentum and the Colts execution of their two-minute drill to tie the game in the closing seconds of regulation time. To commemorate the 50th anniversary, ESPN films paired eleven of the games participants with current players from the Indianapolis Colts and New York Giants to compare the nature of the sport 50 years later, as well as sportscasters, reporters, photographers, spectators, cheerleaders, majorettes and marching band members who contributed their reminiscences. "To commemorate the 50th anniversary, ESPN films paired eleven of the games participants with current players from the Indianapolis Colts and New York Giants to compare the nature of the sport 50 years later." I know the result of the comparison. There can be no comparison. The players of today are quicker and stronger, enhancement drugs aside. The comparison stops there. However, in the 1950s & 1960s the NFL players' work ethic, good citizenship, desire to win with class, and ability to lose with class are without comparison. It was an era when most players were just damn good Americans, husbands, fathers, sons, and had a connection to the average guy on the street. What you saw on the field exemplified this fact.

The Christmas Ornament : Newly widowed Kathy plans to skip out on decking the halls and trimming the tree this Christmas, trying to avoid anything that will bring back memories of her late husband. The only Christmas tradition she will observe is baking cookies for her friends, a passion since she was a child. When Kathy meets handsome Christmas tree shop owner Tim, their undeniable chemistry - along with an ornament Tim gives her that symbolizes hope-helps Kathy open up to the joys of the season again. With the support of her best friend Jenna, and the budding relationship with Tim, Kathy begins to embrace the hopeful message of the ornament. Although Kathy wants to take a chance on Tim, she struggles to find the balance between preserving the memory of her husband and moving on with her own future. Is the Christmas ornament a sign that she can have a hopeful future? It's two weeks before Christmas. This Christmas will be the first as a widow for Kathy Howard, owner/manager of Dream Cycle, a bicycle shop, which was her and her husband Scott's dream venture opened just before Scott passed away in February. Dream Cycle is not doing well as a business, but Kathy is determined to make a go of it to honor Scott's memory, despite having an easy out of her business neighbor Mario wanting to take over her lease, and, according to her accountant Eve Atkinson, having sufficient inventory that after liquidating it she should come out at least even if not a bit ahead. A large part of Kathy and Scott's relationship was the ritual of giving each other a Christmas ornament each year signifying something important that had happened in their lives that year. As such, Kathy plans not to decorate or put up a tree this year so as not to bring up those painful memories. Kathy's best friend, Jenna Lowe, not only wants Kathy to have a Merry Christmas by taking in all that Christmas has to offer, but also to get back into the dating scene. Jenna may get her wish when Kathy accompanies her to purchase a Christmas tree, the tree lot where they meet the owner, Tim Pierce, who is as exuberant about Christmas as Kathy and Scott were. Slowly, Kathy and Tim make a connection, so much so that Tim in part may make Kathy realize what her true post-Scott dreams are. But Tim also has some emotional baggage to get over in the form of Rebecca, who was the love of his life and who left him to marry someone else just over a year ago. Since Tim Pierce was suddenly dumped for a lawyer by Rebecca, he runs a shop and just finally realized his dream: buying a Christmas tree nursery. He waves his sister's efforts to match him, while fatherly employing her teen son Connor as gifted seasonal salesman. Recent widow Kathy Howard, who runs alone and without economic success the bicycle shop she set up with late husband Scott, refuses to celebrate Christmas anymore, as it reminds painfully of happy marital traditions, but is dragged along by buddy Jenna to buy her tree, and thus meets Tim, stirring mutual sparks. Helping him out soothing an aggravated customer line with some of her home-made cookies, she finally finds the courage to attempt her own ambition, a cookie store, and Tim offers ideal support, but Rebecca's sudden reemergence threatens to spoil everything before they've committed properly.

The Phantom Creeps : "The Phantom Creeps" was Universal's 44th sound-era serial (between "The Oregon Trail" and "The Green Hornet") and was re-issued to theaters in 1949 by Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, a distribution set-up handling primarily Universal re-issues. Commonwealth had no hand at all in the production of this serial (as incorrectly shown on site) as they were a distribution company only. Some sources mistakenly identify them as the serial producer because all of the 1949 re-issue prints (and the 16mm prints sold to television circa 1952) show "Commonwealth Pictures Corp. Presents" above the title. There is a whole lot of difference between "presenting" and "producing", a fact that some sources appear to not know or don't care. The serial is of interest to some collectors as it re-unites Bela Lugosi and Edwin Stanley from 1931's "Dracula", and the crater-discovery of the meteorite fragment by Zorka in the serial is stock footage from Universal's 1936 "The Invisible Ray." The stock footage of an explosion and avalanche used in Chapter 11 comes from Universal's 1934 serial, "The Vanishing Shadow." Plot finds eccentric scientist Dr. Alex Zorka carrying on various experiments in his secret laboratory with the aid of his assistant Monk. Zorka has invented many strange weapons of warfare, including a devisualizer belt which renders him invisible; a terrifying, eight-foot tall robot (played by stuntman Edwin "Bud" Wolfe and not circus giant Bud Wolff), and he also has a deadly meteorite fragment (which he found in a 1936 movie with Boris Karloff) from which he extracts an element which can induce suspended animation in an entire army. Foreign spies, operating under the guise of a foreign language school (great cover), are trying to buy or (mostly) steal the meteorite element, while his former partner, Dr. Fred Mallory, miffed that Zorka will not turn his inventions over to the U.S. Government, blows the whistle on him to Captain Bob West of the Military Intelligence Department. Tired of answering the door and saying no to the spies and the government, Zorka moves his lab and when his beloved wife is killed, Zorka, puttering around for his own amusement up to this point, gets hacked off as only Lugosi can, swears eternal vengeance against society, and decides to use his inventions to make himself world dictator. And would have if not for his assistant Monk, an escaped convict virtually enslaved by Zorka, who is cowardly, treacherous and totally incompetent, and whose accidental or deliberate interference with Zorka's efforts repeatedly frustrates his master's grand schemes.

For a Fistful of Diamonds : Once upon a time, a briefcase full of diamonds purchased by French Mobster Dede Fratellini were headed to its owner in Paris via Las Vegas, but the diamonds inconveniently disappeared somewhere in the middle of the Nevada desert. A ruthless killer on his way to prison escapes captivity and intercepts the briefcase by killing the carrier and hijacking his car. His ex-girlfriend Tatiana and her current lover Buitre foil his plans, disabling him. Now, FBI agent Franco Valle has to recover the diamonds and retrace their path, proving to be a complicated, and at times comical, task. This 95 minute comedy/action-packed feature film brings the famous Spaghetti Westerns of the sixties back to life with a touch of modern technology and humor. Filmed in anamorphic format to take advantage of the beautiful landscape of western Europe and the Nevada Desert, this nonsense story of a race for a fistful of diamonds takes you around the globe and ends right back to where it started: in the middle of the Mojave desert!

The Roaring West : "The Roaring West" was Universal's 27th sound-era serial (between "The Call of the Savage" and "Tailspin Tommy in the Great Air Mystery") and the second of the five serials Buck Jones made at Universal, with his sixth serial "White Eagle-1941" coming from Columbia. The Whitman Publishing Company of Racine, Wisconsin also put out two different Big Little Books, "Buck Jones in 'The Roaring West'-number 1174 and "Buck Jones in 'The Fighting Rangers' --- number 1188 --- based on this serial with over 100 production stills from the serial in each book. Possibly, but not likely, someday the sources that insist on putting the Pat O'Brien from Warners into the cast of Universal serials will either actually see this (and other Universal serials) and learn that the actor in those was one Pat J. O'Brien, who was nearly always billed just as Pat O'Brien. If they don't care to bother with watching the films, there is the possibility that some kind soul will scan and send them some stills of both Pat O'Briens. The opening chapter of this serial --- "The Land Rush" --- finds cowpunchers Montana Larkin and Jinglebob Morgan riding into new territory to join an impending land rush. They carry a mail-order catalog hiding a map giving the location of valuable mineral deposits in the land-rush territory. They stop at the ranch of Jim Parker where Montana saves Parker's daughter Mary from a wild horse. The gabby Jinglebob plays poker with ranch foreman Gil Gillespie and reveals the secret of the map. Gil has his henchman, Hank, steal the map, copy it and return it without being seen. Montana, Jinglebob, Parker, Mary, Gillespie and Ann Hardy, a Parker niece, and some stock-footage land-rushers gather the next day for the land rush, where Montana learns that Gillespie has a copy of the map. Montana is riding hard to beat Gillespie to the mineral deposits but Mary falls from her horse and Montana picks her up on the run but the usually-reliable Silver falls over an unseen embankment, and Montana and Mary are underneath as the other horses and wagons plunge after them. That ends chapter one, but things get worse in chapter two as they find that Gillespie has beaten them to the site and has already staked nine claims. But Gillespie, the cad, is willing to share the claims with old man Parker if he will turn Mary over to Gillespie as his bride. 13 more chapters of such high-handed villainy occur before Montana gets total control of the situation.

Phantom of the Desert : Dan Denton and Steve are rustling horses and blaming a wild horse called the Phantom. Jack Saunders arrives and sets out to capture the wild horse. When he catches and rides the horse, it leads him to the stolen horses and right into the hands of Denton and his gang. Harry S.Webb liked this plot so much that he remade it four more times, including twice in the same year (1940) as "Wild Horse Range" at Monogram with Jack Randall, and as "Wild Horse Valley" with Bob Steele at Webb's own Metropolitan company. The expense-saving use of stock footage featuring "Starlight the Wonder Horse" from the original most likely had more to do with Webb's poverty-stricken remakes than any fondness for the plot; While foreman Dan Denton and ranch hands/henchies Jim and Steve are rustling the brood mares from rancher Colonel Van Horn, they blame the loss on a white phantom stallion roaming the surround hills. The Colonel offer a large "dead-or-alive" reward for the horse. Jack Saunders, a newly-hired hand, persuades Van Horn, through Van Horn's daughter Mary to reward only the capture of the horse alive. Using Mary's horse as bait, Jack captures the phantom horse, finds evidence that the source of the missing horses is two-legged rustling, finds the stolen herd, and roundups the rustlers. And gives the innocent horse his freedom.

Then one day, things went sour, and his partner, Suntie barely escaped with his life...after accidentally killing a woman. Jake called it quits and returned to the United States when his wife died, and Suntie became a Buddhist monk to atone for his sins. For the past 10 years, Jake has run a successful private security business, and has been raising his daughter Jessica, who is now an adult. While hiking in Thailand, Jessica and her friend Sarah Winthorpe are kidnapped. A group of Islamic fundamentalists known as the Abu Karaf claims responsibility. Sarah is the daughter of United States senator John Winthorpe. For ransom, the Abu Karaf demand the release of 20 prisoners from American custody. The US Secretary of State urges restraint -- he won't negotiate. Tom Collins, an ex-colleague of Jake's, recognizes Jessica on the ransom tape and tips Jake off. Jake knows that he must rescue the girls himself. An old CIA buddy puts Jake in contact with Leon Washington, an active CIA agent who is working in Thailand. Jake goes to Bangkok, and escapes an assassination attempt. Leon arranges a meeting for himself with with Soku -- the internal security chief for General Jantapan. Jantapan is a rebel military general who is making a play to be one of the most powerful men in Thailand. Secretly, Jantapan is messing with some dangerous spiritual forces. Soku provides Jake with a cover story, but the CIA wants Jake out of it -- they are planning to take out the Abu Karaf with the aid of the Thai army, and they don't want a civilian in the middle. Jake is a spiritual man, so he contacts his spiritual master Paijan Paitoon. As Jake is in trouble, Paitoon offers to arrange a divination from the oracle of the order. Jake enlists the help of Sunti. Jake gets Lulu, the girlfriend of arms dealer Fitch McQuoid, to steal information leading to the Abu Karaf. Jake and Sunti follow the leads to a warehouse where they discover evidence of highly sophisticated weaponry. With their enemies now after Lulu, Jake takes Lulu under his wing. Jake shares some of his info with Leon. Can he trust Leon? Another attempt is made on Jake's life -- and this time, Jake is sure that Leon was involved. Finally, the Abu Karaf contact Jake to arrange a meeting -- the pieces are coming together, and Jake figures out that it was not the Abu Karaf who kidnapped Jessica and Sarah. Jantapan tries to send the spirit of an ancient warrior demon to kill Jake, but the ceremony goes wrong and the spirit enters Jantapan himself, giving Jantapan amazing physical and spiritual powers. Jake and Sunti go to meet Mongkol, the leader of the Abu Karaf. Mongkol confirms that ever since the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, Jantapan has worked to corner the narcotics and arms markets. It was Jantapan who kidnapped the girls, blaming the Abu Karaf so the army would wipe out his competition. Mongkol knows where the girls are, and he gives Jake plans and intelligence. They both need the girls alive. Jake must engage in a battle that will put both his physical and spiritual powers to the ultimate test.

Party Like the Rich and Famous : The most expensive party in American history takes place at the newly opened Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City on Feb 10th 1897. This elaborate costume ball is attended by nearly 1,000 of New York's wealthiest citizens, many billionaires by today's standards, all dressed in costumes celebrating European royalty. In a single night they drink their way through 4,000 bottles of the finest champagne, and gorge on a 28-course feast fit for any king. But this epic display of excess comes during the worst depression America has known at this time, and not everyone is applauding the show. The host of the night is Cornelia Bradley-Martin, heiress to a vast fortune and a woman on a mission. She hopes to provide a much-needed stimulus to New York's lagging economy-and to be crowned "Queen" of an exclusive high society known as "The Four Hundred". But she's given herself only three weeks to prepare this astonishing event. The logistics alone for such a massive party are remarkable even by today's standards, and to add to the challenge, on the very night of the ball a snowstorm descends upon the metropolis. Today, the same hotel still puts on huge events that parallel this famous party. The annual Viennese Opera Ball is one of the highlights of New York's social calendar and attracts dignitaries, diplomats and débutantes. Six hundred guests gather every year paying up to $25,000 per table to charity in celebration of a European tradition that goes back nearly two centuries. But what are the parallels with the famous Bradley Martin Ball and what are the differences? Jes Gordon and Marcie Rudell are two of New York's elite party planners. They both put on parties costing thousands of dollars. So how would they cope with planning America's most expensive party if they had just three weeks to make it happen? A thousand invitations need to be sent before the advent of email, beautifully tailored dresses have to be produced by hand, and food needs to be delivered and kept fresh without the help of refrigeration. Perhaps most challenging of all, a battle for public opinion must be won...or there may be consequences for the night's epic indulgence. This one-hour special goes inside the machinations of the Bradley Martins' record-setting costume ball in America's number one metropolis to learn what it takes to party like the rich and famous.

Sheriff of Las Vegas : When the Sheriff of Las Vegas is killed in a bank holdup, Red Ryder is made the new Sheriff. His first problem arises when the Judge is shot and the Judge's son framed for the murder. Red knows the son is innocent from the type of bullet used and after hiding him from the lynch mob, sets a trap for the man he thinks is behind both the robbery and the murder. In 1895, Judge Blackwell requests his banker, Arthur Stanton, to bring a list of his securities so that he can disinherit his wild young son, Tom Blackwell. When his father is found murdered, Tom is accused. Knowing the boy to be innocent, Sheriff Red Ryder hides him in a school house and then makes certain that Stanton is aware of it. A mob storms the school and gunplay ensues. Red notes that one of the gang is firing a Derringer, the type of gun used in Judge Blackwell's murder. The gunman is mortally wounded and confesses his part in the framing of Tom. Red pulls a ruse which forces Stanton to confess he had the Judge murdered to hide the fact he had embezzled his funds.

King of the Pecos : Profiteer Alexander Stiles lays claim to a million acres of range in the Pecos River country, but a rancher named Clayborn stands in his way as he has already claimed the water-rich location of Sweetwater as his own, and refuses Stiles' $1000 offer for his land. Led by the murderous Ash, the hired guns of Stiles kill Clayborn and his wife but their young son John survives and joins his grandfather in Austin. As the boy grows into a man he learns the use of a law book as well as a six gun, intending to use both to bring Stiles to justice. As lawyer John Clay, he travels to the Cottonwood headquarters of Stiles, self-proclaimed King of the Pecos, and meets Hank Matthews and Josh Billings, two cattlemen thrown into poverty through the crooked dealings of Stiles. John serves a summons for Stiles to appear in court but the circuit judge is too frightened to face the might of Stiles. John sends Hank to round up other impoverished cattlemen, and they provide the judge with an armed escort to Cottonwood. The judge upholds the ranchers' pleas for use of water and grass, and Stiles sees most of his ill-gotten gains turned over to public domain for proper filing. Stiles convinces newcomers Eli Jackson and his daughter Belle that John is trying to cheat the ranchers and file claims for himself. He also plans an ambush for those riding through the canyon to file claims and he sends Ash and his gunmen to the hills, instructing them to shoot anyone without the white arm bands he has supplied to his own riders. John discovers the plot and has the ranchers to also wear white arm bands, ensuring their safe passage. With their claim successfully filed the ranchers plan a cattle drive to Abilene where the railroad is promising $20 a head. Stiles steals whatever cattle he can and moves his outlaws to Sweetwater, where he hopes to extort money for use of the water there from the trail drivers. When the drive reaches Sweetwater, John confronts Stiles, revealing that he is the son of the murdered Clayborn's and that Sweetwater rightfully belongs to him. Following a siege by John and the ranchers, Stiles tries to escape by buckboard, but when the wagon tips over he is crushed by the safe containing money he has stolen from others. John pursues Ash into the rocks, offering him a chance to draw first and then kills him. John leaves his gun and his quest for revenge at the site and turns his mind to Belle and his law career. To control the area's water rights, Stiles kills the Clayburns. Their boy John was present and ten years later he returns as a lawyer. First he gets the Judge to declare the water rights public. Then he foils Stiles' attempt to keep the ranchers from filing. When the ranchers drive their cattle to market Stiles tries to stop them. But John is not only determined to get them through but to also settle the score with Stiles.

"Berlin 1936: Games of the XI Olympiad" : The 10th Olympic Summer Games were held in Berlin, Germany from August 1 to 16, 1936. About 110,000 spectators were present during the opening ceremony at the Lustgarten Olympic stadium. It was the first Olympics to be televised and that too for free! During the Parade of Nations 50 countries took part. It is believed that the Olympic salute was used by the Nazis for their 'sieg heil' which was first seen at the 1912

Stokcholm games. The Olympic torch which had been ignited on July 20, 1936 in Olympia was brought by runners and finally carried by middle distance runner Fritz Schilgen who lit the Olympic brazier. Hitler declared the games open. World records were established during the games: Jesse Owens (USA) 100 mtr men @ 10.3 secs (a record that would stand till Rome 1960), John Lovelock (NZL) 1500 mtr men @ 3:47.8, Volmari Iso-Hollo (FIN) 3000 mtr steeplechase men @ 9:03.8, 4x100 mtr men USA @ 39.8, Naoto Tajima (JPN) triple jump men @ 16 ft and Glenn Morris (USA) decathlon men @ 7900 pts among others. There were also contests in architecture, literature, music, painting and graphic arts, sculpture and merits for alipinism & aeronautics! Jesse Owens would be the most celebrated athlete of the games winning 4 gold (100 mtrs, 200 mtrs, 4X100 mtr relay & long jump), setting 2 world records and 2 olympic records. The closing ceremony was held on August 16, 1936. It would be the last Olympic game for next 12 years. The 1940 Games was scheduled for Helsinki but cancelled because of World War 2. At the end of the games the top 3 medal winning countries based on total medals tally were: Germany 89, USA 56 and Italy 22.

Heart of the West : The sixth of the Hopalong Cassidy films, with the story source credited to Clarence E. Mulford's "Mesquite Jenkins, Tumbleweed", finds Hopalong Cassidy and his young pal, Johnny Nelson, leaving their Bar 20 home range to answer a letter offering them jobs on the Tumbling-L Ranch of Big John Trumbull near Yucca. Before they arrive in town, they save an old wrangler named Windy from drowning, who has been fired on from ambush as he was delivering a valuable stud bull to the depot. Windy, whose sole trusted weapon is a blacksnake whip, tells them he works for the Three-J Ranch adjoining Trumbull's spread. Hoppy and Johnny soon learn that Trumbull's outfit isn't the kind they want to work for, turn down the job offer, and take work with the Three-J, operated by easterner Jim Jordan and his sister Sally. Jordan is planning on fencing in his grazing land, but Trumbull swears this won't happen because, unknown to the other ranchers, Trumbull's men have been driving rustled cattle through a pass on the Jordan land. Hoppy and Johnny aid Jordan in getting his fence up, while Trumbull's men first try to stop them by gun warfare and then by starting a stampede of rustled cattle toward the narrow pass where the fence is being erected. Hoppy dynamites a dam, releases a torrent of water, and then succeeds in turning back the herd on the rustlers. The troubles at the Three-J are over and Hoppy and Johnny head back to the Bar 20. Hoppy and Johnny arrive to take jobs as cow punchers for rancher Trumbull and quickly learn of his fight with rancher Jim Jordan. Taking a dislike to Trumbull for his attack on Jordan's foreman Windy, they join up with Jordan instead and soon find themselves caught up in the conflict.

The Common Sense : New York-based artist Melanie Gilligan's largest project to date, The Common Sense takes the form of a sci-fi film and mini-series which looks at how minds, bodies, and interpersonal relations are shaped by technological advancements within capitalism. This experimental narrative drama tells a story that revolves around a future technology which allows one to directly experience another person's bodily sensations and affect. After a decade of transforming the conditions of work and social life, for the most part in accordance with economic demands, the technology's networks suddenly fail causing massive disorientation. People withdraw and isolate themselves from the public, no longer knowing how to communicate. Once the system comes back online, the story splits into two scenarios: one version shows a period of normalization after the rupture, while in the other people confront the ways that the technology has been exploitatively used for years, some forming social movements to resist the continuation of these conditions.

Party Like the Queen of France : Marie Antoinette, the last queen of France, and Hugh Hefner, the Playboy legend may seem unlikely bedfellows, but they both share a love of the Masquerade Party. Through two parallel events, centuries apart, Party Like the Queen of France, tells the story of one of the world's most popular and enduring types of party. Party planner Dylan Marer has been given the opportunity to impress his client Hugh Hefner. He will be putting on the annual Playboy Masquerade party at the famous mansion. This year Hef has asked Dylan to create something unique and different. In a stroke of genius Dylan decides to the theme of this year's bash will be based around the provocative French queen, Marie Antoinette. Over the course of the show Dylan's concept is put to the test. Will it go according to plan? Will his host and 1500 demanding Hollywood guests be satisfied. For Dylan and his team, success begins with researching his chosen subject. In the late eighteenth century the young teenage Queen, Marie Antoinette, attended masquerades in Paris as lavish and decadent as any in history. There are many differences between these parties and the Playboy Masquerade. Modern technology, for example, enables today's pleasure seekers to enjoy the very latest in laser light shows, amped up music, chilled cocktails, and VIP transportation. But the similarities to the eighteenth century masked parties are surprisingly evident. For a start, there is great music, provocative dancing, exquisite food and the finest champagnes. There are even VIP areas for those who want to afford more privacy. But most of all, it's the beautiful masks that enable guests, past and present, to adopt a secret identity for the night. Emboldened by the wrong assumption that her identity was hidden, the Queen would rub shoulders with commoners and aristocrats alike; drinking, gambling and enjoying secret encounters. But, such was her beauty and grand style that most there knew who she was. While Marie Antoinette might have been simply enjoying what most teenage girls do today, her partying ways eventually turned people against her and fanned the flames of the French Revolution, resulting in the overthrow of the monarchy, and her execution. But while Revolutionary France remembers her as an immoral spendthrift, people like Dylan Marer look to her for inspiration. Her beauty, fashion sense, and ability to charm have left a lasting effect, none more so than tonight at the Playboy Mansion, where forty semi-naked, Marie Antoinette look-a-likes, celebrate the charismatic queen. The young queen's masquerades were a hot-blooded attempt to escape the frustrations of a loveless marriage. The Playboy Masquerade Party is a return to her world for modern day party lovers - a provocative escape from the shackles of their daily lives. Tonight, everyone here will Party Like the Queen of France.

The Turtle Stone: The Legacy of Abbott Farm : This historical drama takes us to the Abbott Farm site on the Delaware River in New Jersey. The Night the World Exploded : Dr. Conway has perfected a machine which he believes will predict earthquakes, and has determined that one will strike California within 24 hours. He and his patron, Dr. Morton, attempt to convince the Governor but he cannot bring himself to declare an emergency when there is no proof the machine works - which, within 24 hours, it is proven to do. More significantly, Conway is getting readings which indicate a series of additional, pending quakes around the world, which also begin to occur; and more still seem to be on the way. With his assistant "Hutch", to whose love for him he seems oblivious, Conway takes his equipment to the deepest point of Carlsbad Caverns, in hopes that being closer to the center of the earth will help discern the cause of the earthquake epidemic. It does, when they inadvertently discover a new element which lies dormant in watery pools deep within the earth but, when in contact with air, becomes violently explosive. Forces unknown appear to be pushing this element surface-ward around the globe, and a computer analysis determines that enough will be exposed to explode the entire world within a little more than 28 days... Dr. David Conway has been developing a machine that will allow him to predict earthquakes and other seismic activity. By the time it's perfected the machine predicts a major earthquake for the next day. He and his colleague Dr, Ellis Morton try to forewarn the Governor but it's too late to do anything. The subsequent earthquake is devastating. They head deep into the Carlsbad caverns to determine what might be causing the pressure. What they find is an unknown volatile mineral that is safe when wet but expands and eventually explodes when dry. The mineral has been pushed to the surface and their only solution is to flood those areas where the mineral is found.

The Man from Monterey : In old California Captain John Holmes must convince landowner Don Jose Cantares to register his land or face having it become public domain. Don Luis Gonzales, with rather selfish motives, is trying to convince him to do otherwise. Captain John Holmes has been sent to encourage the Spanish landowners in California to register their land. To keep Don Jose from registering his, Don Pablo kidnaps him. Earlier Holmes did a favor for Morgan and his ruffian gang by keeping them from being arrested. Now he calls on Morgan to repay that favor by helping him fight Don Pablo and his men. The Rancho Castanares, near the Pueblo Santa Barbara and stretching from the mountains to the sea, is threatened by a decree of the American government requiring Spanish land-grant owners to register their holdings by June 15th, or see them revert to public domain. Scheming Don Pablo Gonzales advises his wealthy friend Don Jose Castanares to defy the government decree, as he wishes to grab the Rancho Castanares for himself, and it is obvious that his lazy son, Luiz, will not obtain the property through marriage to Jose's daughter Dolores, who dreams of meeting a dashing storybook hero. Knowing an entrance cue when he heard one, in rides U.S. Army Captain John Holmes on his horse Duke, sent by the government to convince the land-owners to protect their property by registration. John, guided through the countryside by a fast-talking gent of shady fortune, Felipe Guadalupe Constacio Delgado Santa Cruz de la Verranca, wins the trust of Don Jose and the wrath of the steaming and still-scheming Gonzales. John wins an unlikely ally when he prevents the arrest by U.S. Army troops of outlaw Jake Morgan, who promises to leave the Rancho Castanares alone and provide help anytime John might need it. Which turns out to be soon. Don Jose, on his way to meet John and register his land, is kidnapped by Gonzales' henchmen, and when Dolores goes searching for her father and arrives at the Gonzales ranch, she is held hostage and forced to consent to marriage to Don Luis to save her father. But among the guests at the hastily-assembled wedding are John and Jake in the company of Luis' jilted lover, Anita and her outraged "aunt" who is Felipe in disguise. Greatly outnumbered by Gonzales' hired henchies, John, Jake and Felipe fight with swords and ceramic projectiles (as might be expected from a man in drag) while Duke (the Miracle Horse) leads Jake's gang to the rescue. A remake of 1928's "The Canyon of Adventure" and features a few scenes where, courtesy of stock footage, John and Duke magically turn into Ken Maynard and Tarzan. Warners reissued this in 1939 and the other westerns Wayne made for producer Leon Schlesinger, with revised artwork (ugly) and updated tagline identifying Wayne as the "hero of "Stagecoach" and "Allegheny Uprising", but Duke, the Miracle Horse kept his accustomed billing.

The Gunfighter : A reformed Gunfighter Jimmy Ringo is on his way to a sleepy town in the hope of a reunion with his estranged sweetheart and their young son who he has never seen. On arrival, a chance meeting with some old friends including the town's Marshal gives the repentant Jimmy some respite. But as always Jimmy's reputation has already cast its shadow, this time in the form of three vengeful cowboys hot on his trail and a local gunslinger hoping to use Jimmy to make a name for himself. With a showdown looming, the town is soon in a frenzy as news of Jimmy's arrival spreads. His movements are restricted to the saloon while a secret meeting with his son can be arranged giving him ideas of a long term reunion with his family far removed from his wild past. Gunfighter Jimmy Ringo returns to his old home town to visit his estranged wife and see the young son he has never met. As far as Jimmy is concerned his past life as a gunslinger is over and is looking to settle down. There is little however he can do to shed his reputation as the fastest gun around. Nor can he escape those looking to make a name for themselves by challenging him to a gunfight. Jimmie Ringo is the fastest gun in the west, but he is getting tired of it all and would like to retire. But wherever he goes, there is always some tough kid who wants to try to beat him to the draw. Aging gunslinger, Jimmy Ringo, rides into a strange town where he's immediately recognized. As kids gather at the saloon windows to glimpse the killer and townsfolk gossip about his exploits, the town marshal tries to keep the peace. He wants Ringo out of town, but Ringo asks for a few hours' grace to see his sweetheart, whom he hasn't seen in more than eight years, and their son, whom he's never seen. Meanwhile, three angry cowboys are on his trail and the town's young hothead is scheming to see just how fast Jimmy is. Ringo wants to be left alone, to live with his family, maybe on a small ranch away from his reputation. But can he escape that reputation and find peace?

Streets of Ghost Town : Steve, Smiley, and the Sheriff come to a ghost town looking for missing gold. In flashback, Steve tells the story of Bill Donner who doublecrossed his partners to get the gold. Donner, now blind and in jail, refuses to tell where the gold is hidden. Another one of the films from the Durango Kid series where there's only about 20 minutes of new footage shot; the scenes in the ghost town involving the credited players---Charles Starrett, Smiley Burnette, George Chesebro, Mary Ellen Kay, Don Reynolds, Stanley Andrews. Frank Fenton and the uncredited Jack Ingram---and the remaining footage is taken from two 1946 films in the series, "Gunning For Vengeance" and "Landrush", with the latter dominating most of the running time, but with the majority of the stock-footage scenes covered by a voice-over narration by Charles Starrett telling Sheriff Stanley Andrews the background story that has now led them to the streets of ghost town. The plot here concerns the search for unrecovered loot hidden in the ghost town by double-crossing outlaws. Most of the footage is told in flashback by Starrett, who leaves out the actual ending of "Landrush" to make the scenes from it merge into this film. Plus, when he's talking and the people in the stock footage scenes aren't, then the story can be whatever he says it is and not what may have actually transpired in the original films. This leads to a few oddities such as; Starrett's non-Durango character in this one is Steve Woods, but the handbills he hands out in stock footage from "Landrush" carry the name of his character in that film, Steve Harmon; George Chesebro has the credited role of Bill Donner, but he also plays henchman in the footage from the other two films, neither of which is named Donner; and Bob Kortman plays henchman from two other films, one with a moustache and one without, and the scene continuity has it appearing and disappearing from one scene to the next, and Jock Mahoney flits in and out doubling Starrett in scenes from three different movies, counting this one. The best scene is in the actual original footage when George Chesebro, as the blinded Bill Donner and playing it in his usual over-the-top at full volume style a la Al Picino(or vice-versa since Chesebro came first), is cornered by outlaw Frank Fenton, and tells Fenton that he can't see him but he can hear him, implying some kind of threat to Fenton's welfare. Fenton, who can both see and hear, promptly shoots him dead. And, speaking of that, players Bud Geary and John Tyrrell were both dead when this film was released, but stock footage has extended more than one career.

Revenge of the Virgins : Tenderfoot Burton and his wife join forces with an old prospector to search for the rich gold strike the old-timer claims to know of. Along with a couple of no-account gunslingers, they ride deep into the mountains to find the gold, unaware that the treasure is guarded by an all-female tribe of deadly, beautiful, and topless Indians.

915

Cowboy and Lucky : Cowboy and Lucky are not the most subtle private investigators money can buy, but their knack for mischief and nose for trouble always seem to get the job done. Their reputation catches the attention of Lieutenant Loretta Dunn, an undercover Jackson City police officer, who secretly hires the brothers to help her take a part a powerful new drug cartel that is flooding the streets with a deadly new drug called Tempest. However, Cowboy's and Lucky's good fortunes take a dangerous turn when a failed bust reveals their involvement, and Dunn goes off the grid. Were they set up? Who wants them dead? And whom can they trust? Watch them tear through Jackson City looking for the answers, and see what they mean when they say "if it ain't broke.....just you wait!" The film centers on the emergence of a powerful new street drug called Tempest. The brothers attempt to assist Lieutenant Loretta Dunn's vice operation in bringing down this new cartel as deaths associated with the new drug skyrocket. Knowing the police force has been compromised, Loretta utilizes the brothers as a secondary arm of her operation to gather intel and track suspects all while she attempts to move up the Tempest organization an undercover to find the man at the top: Steve Carlisle. When a bust goes bad and reveals Cowboy and Lucky's involvement, the brothers are motivated more by survival than loyalty to Loretta in finding the culprits and stopping Carlisle in his tracks.

Enter the Cage : In the near future, the only sport that counts is Cage Fighting - to the death. When a small semi pro team are given the chance to fight against one of the largest teams in the country it could be the answer to their financial problems. 918

Law of the Northwest : Learning that the Alaskan Highway will pass thirty miles from town, the citizens of Moose Horn, Canada decide to build a connecting road which will permit them to transport tungsten from their mines in large quantities. George Bradley gets fellow mine owners to put up their tungsten claims as security to build the road. He delays construction in an effort to gain ownership of the mines for himself. Michele Darcy, a pretty nurse, teams up with Mounties Steve King and Neal Clayton to clear her hot-headed trapper cousin, Paul Darcy, of suspicion of blocking the road, and King brings Bradley and his gang to justice.

Flipping the Score : When it comes to video games Sparrow Finch is a savant. From her father's original Atari console to Virtual Reality headsets, Rowe has always had a natural intuition for video games. One day while at an arcade called the Hive, a boy named Norman allows Rowe to play the last player of his 'Myths and Mystics' video game. Within no time, Rowe has completed the entire game. Something that should have taken months. Upon seeing what Rowe has done, Norman rips the game controller from Rowe's hands and takes credit for the unheard of accomplishment. Norman is bolstered by Hive's owner Mr. Lastrik and employee, Darryl, both of whom don't believe Rowe, being a young girl, could accomplish such a feat. Rowe's stolen accomplishment skyrockets Norman to video game fame and wins him enough prize money to build his own Virtual Reality Arcade, The Commune, while Rowe is left deeply scarred, in silent unanimity. This year at Denver Comic Convention, Rowe can finally redeem herself playing in a Myths and Mystics Virtual Reality Video Game Tournament against Norman. Sponsored by the Hive, Rowe and her team have the opportunity to advance to Nationals in Las Vegas, where Rowe can reveal her talent on a National stage. But a tear in the universe caused by the 'Virtual Reality Experience' transforms her into her character in the game, a powder blue super soldier and drops her in a world uncannily close to the Myths and Mystics video game. Here, Norman controls a 12 foot tyrant named Conscription who uses a spell called 'Will of Man' to control the viral males of this Universe. Potite Monarch, Rowe's best friend and love interest is from this Alternate Universe and visits our world by way of her own Virtual Reality video game. Potite is hoping Rowe's amazing video game skills will translate to superhuman abilities so to defend her planet Verdurous, from Norman and the evil Conscription. Potite employs her brother Maurice to guide Rowe on her heroine's journey to defeat Conscription, get back to the Tournament and victoriously claim her Grand Champion Status and victory over her detractors.

Blood, Bullets and Babes : The world has turned into a lawless land of which renegades and thugs make their own laws. A band of drug running rejects is held up in the northwest, after killing corrupt cops in a desert shootout. The leader of the gang becomes obsessed with a young scientist that is researching the area.

921

The ROLE Model : Chris Powers, a literature teacher, has led a charmed life. He's the father of two beautiful young children, and in love with Ginni - a very attractive, devoted wife and mother. Sadly though, with little warning, she dies of a mysterious illness and Chris is overwhelmed with grief. Soon after her death Chris is astounded to learn that Ginni was the secret heiress to a fortune worth nearly a billion dollars, which has been bequeathed to him. She also used part of her clandestine wealth to contract with a mysterious corporation that developed a technology known as ROLE -(Real Online Life Emulation), which would enable her "cloned consciousness" to forever be accessible via social media applications. Despite Chris's strong reluctance, Ginni's "ROLE Model" begins to engage him online. As he interacts with her more and more, a series of macabre murders take place... murders committed to prevent Chris from learning a shocking and powerful secret that will forever shatter our perception of reality; while the very survival of humankind rests upon the stunning outcome.

King of Dodge City : Wild Bill Hickok is sent to Abilene to take on Morgan King and his gang. When he breaks into King's bank to get proof of King's thievery, Sheriff Tex puts him in jail. His friend Cannonball, having lost Bill's letter of authority, now has to get him out.

"IPT King of the Hill" : The world's greatest pool players compete to win the biggest prize money in the history of the sport, and to dethrone the current "King of the Hill," Mike "The Mouth" Sigel. Six-episode series follows the tournament action from Round One to the Championship.

The Eagle and the Hawk : 1863. Texas Ranger Todd Croyden and Union spy Whitney Randolph cross into Mexico to investigate a growing struggle for power between the French-supported Maximilian and the native-born Benito Juarez. In Mexico they meet General Liguras, who is loyal to Juarez, and the beautiful Madeline -- daughter of or wife to the powerful and manipulative Basil Danzeeger. Croyden falls for Madeline but soon runs afoul of Danzeeger who condemns him to be pulled apart between two horses.

925

The Dude Cowboy : A rancher, smitten with a pretty young girl he meets, hires himself out to her as a chauffeur, only to find out that she's on her way to his ranch. In order not to look foolish he keeps up the pretense, but his crooked ranch foreman eventually brings matters to a head.

Guns of the Law : The 11th in the series of 14 "Texas Rangers" westerns from P.R.C. that starred Dave O'Brien and Jim Newill, before Newill was replaced by Tex Ritter in the concluding eight films of a very bad 22-films series: Lillian Wilkins and her old Civil War Veteran Uncle Jed Wilkins own a ranch through which a pipeline will be laid. They are unaware of this but Dan Tyndall, Joe Hyslop and Tom Binns are aware of the possibilities for a quick profit and set out to prove through crooked-surveyor Sam Brisco that the land has been improperly surveyed and not rightfully the possession of the Wilkins. They go to family friend and attorney Kendall Lowther for advice and this is not a good move as Lowther is actually the brains behind the scheme to beat them out of their property. But Texas Rangers Tex Wyatt and Jim Steele show up to take a hand on the side of the Wilkins. That also means that Panhandle Perkins, accompanied by Lee Zahler's horrific comedy scoring, will also show up. Wilkerson's comedy and Zahler's music is enough to make one root for the villains. This one has so many villains that Bud Osborne is relegated to playing a good guy role.

927

The Ranger, the Cook and a Hole in the Sky : A young ranger in the Montana wilderness discovers the great forces of nature while learning the importance of honor, trust and integrity. Legendary veteran ranger Bill Bell educates the young man and guides him toward manhood. The year is 1919-a time when being a ranger meant more than operating expensive equipment. Forest fires were fought with guts and courage, not chemicals and airplanes. Bill Bell was the toughest ranger in an elite crew of very rugged men. A figure of heroic proportions, he was generally feared and respected by all. It was even rumored that he had at one time killed a sheep farmer, which only fueled his already enormous reputation. The young ranger does everything to remain in the good graces of Bill Bell, the senior ranger he idolizes. Their tentative rapport grows into a friendship through a hilarious and heroic rite of passage in which the younger ranger meets the test-and the woman of his dreams.

The Accidental Spy : When IT specialist Emmanuel Prince gets blindsided by his cheating girlfriend, his world comes crashing down. While wallowing in his sorrows, his best friends encourage him to take a trip to America to "breeze out" and refocus his energy. In the meantime, Nigerian news outlets have been buzzing about a new experimental energy source invented by a Nigerian national studying abroad. "The Green Light Source" promises to provide natural sources of electricity to Nigerian citizens for next to nothing. This prospect however does not sit well with the Nigerian Power Cartels who are currently manipulating and abusing the energy system for their own personal gain. Unwilling to have their reign hampered by a meddling outsider, The Chairman "as he is called, hires a professional hit man to kill the inventor before the unveiling. Fast forward a few weeks and Manny is settling into life as a single guy, exploring America and what it has to offer. While lying in his hotel one night, he comes across an advertisement for a reality show called "What's your Fantasy". The reality show offers participants to act out real life documented experiences for pure entertainment. With childhood dreams of becoming an "SSS", Emmanuel decides to sign up for the heck of it. Unfortunately for him, his first assignment takes a wrong turn and he ends up taking the place of an actual assassin. While dodging bullets and risking his life, Manny thinks he's simply acting out his character for the reality show. Will Manny the IT Wiz figure his way through the show and save his life? Or will he fall to the deadly arms of the Viper?

All he wanted to do was to find a way out. However, as time passes, he adjusts, integrates into the community, marries a local girl, and raises a family. One day years later, he heard the Gang of Four has been smashed. China is once again in flux. Millions of urban youths who were sent to the country can return to their home cities. Although she loves him, his Tibetan wife will not leave the steppes. Wan must choose. Should he stay or should he return to his family in Hangzhou.

Deadly Diversions : The computer disc held all the answers and all the dangers. Drake, an everyday man suddenly faces unknown dangers from everywhere - all after the disc. Who can he trust? The man in the black suit? The girl next door who just moved in? Suddenly his quiet suburban life erupts into a harrowing journey through the deadly streets of the Los Angeles he no longer knows or trusts ... Deadly Diversions takes us into all the places of Los Angeles an illegal film crew can go ... and shouldn't go. Each scene could be the film's last if the word isn't given in three languages ... "run, it's the cops, we have no permit." Deadly Diversions is the culmination of dozens of weekends plotting out where to shoot for free and whether great craft services can convince the lead actors to return ... and the belief when someone offers you apprentice ninjas and Mexican wrestlers on tour, you fit them in the script - dammit! There is also nudity. And like in real life, it was under the table ...

936

The Magic and the Rose : Alan, a recluse man in his 70's escapes the pain and guilt caused by the death of his wife by finding solace in the sweet melodies played with his fiddle. Unexpectedly he meets Blanche; a carefree, vivacious woman who see's only the beauty in all things, turns his life topsy-turvy as she teaches him that it's never too late to embrace love & adventure, regardless of the risks.

937

Welcome to Nowhere : In a series of warped, image-driven episodes, five strangers in the American West navigate overlapping landscapes of paradoxical fantasy. Constantly shifting perspective, the fractured narrative revolves around a poet, a hitchhiker and three motel rooms. A surrealistic combination of sparse dialog, unsettling characters and abstracted motion graphics animation, the film is a dreamy revision to the classic road story.

938

The Sports Illustrated 20 Greatest College Basketball Players Ever : For the first time ever, the writers and staff at Sports Illustrated have pulled together their list of the 20 greatest college players to ever play. Hosted by Summer Sanders and with guests Pooh Richardson and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the conversation will be heated as to 'who's on the list and who isn't. Secret Service agent Rankin manages to recover Harold's money from Black, but is injured in the process and suffers amnesia. He wanders onto the Walling ranch, where he is mistakenly assumed to be Rice. Complications ensue.

940

Reincarnation : A Japanese actress (Yuka) comes face to face with a slew of restless spirits when she signs on to star in a horror film -- the true story of a crazed professor's murderous rampage that left 11 victims, including his young daughter, in its wake. But the film being shot at the very site where the grisly killings took place. Takashi Shimizu (The Grudge) directs this darkly mesmerizing tale of crime, punishment and redemption.

941

The Mustachioed Bandit Meets His End : When Leonard wakes to find himself tied to a horse, a noose around his neck, dead bodies on all sides, and a gash on his head that prevents him from remembering any of it, he sets off to find help for the unconscious survivors. His journey won't be easy, as he meets a new kid in town and a sinister villain who both have pasts that may put Leonard in peril.

942

The Internationals : Los Internationals is a more serious Latino take on the Expendables and the A-Team, that will feature a team of all Spanish speaking characters who represent different parts of South America and the Caribbean. The film will be fun and have lots of heart but will also take a closer look at real violence in our society and the glorification of it in video games; comparing the two to show the vast contrast and its true impact on our children.

943

Men of Respect : After 10 years away from New Orleans and the mob, Joseph thought he was a different man. Now a decorated Federal Marshal, he's ready to return home and live life on the right side of the law. But when a war with a local drug lord turns increasingly personal, Joseph finds himself slipping into old habits, talking to old friends, and wondering if he's really changed at all. Men of Respect is a gripping thriller about loyalty, corruption, and buried sins

The New Maverick : Gambling brothers Bret ('James Garner (I)' (qv)) and Bart Maverick ('Jack Kelly (I)' (qv)) are, as usual, hot on the trail of a fast buck when they find themselves partnered with the eager-but-inexperienced Ben Maverick ('Charles Frank (I)' (qv), son of their British-born cousin, Beau Maverick.

951

Law of the Canyon : Bringing in a supply of goods, Steve has them hijacked. The Doctor is behind the hijacks and offers to act as a middleman and return the goods for a fee. He has doped up the Sheriff to keep him out of the way and now tries the same on Steve. But Smiley had earlier used the Doc's medicine in an experiment and replaced it with water and this gives the Durango Kid a chance to go into action.

Tears of Heaven : Langer, a Proman is leading a sortie to another planet, many light years away. Somewhere, his brother Prexus, is on a similar mission, though through another route. As Langer takes a break at Encelades, a moon on the planet Saturn, to replenish the human embroyes and absorb oxygen and water from the moon, he is being relentlessly chased by the Robots, as evolution of humans to promen is already threatened by The Robots, who, by design and evolution, are now regarded as a new species. Only one of the two will survive. Langer's task: To lead humans to a star constellation called Epsilon Eridani, as Earth is lost to the Robots. The 'End Days' have begun. Earth date 2124: Humans have evolved into Promen, an acronym for Prosthetic

Humans. Human beings are no longer subject to life and death cycle in a conventional way. Every part of the body is replaceable. Promen ruled for over 75 years, but the evolutions of the Robots threatens the survival of the Promen. The 'End Days' have begun.

Mutiny in Outer Space : An expedition to the lunar ice caves contracts a deadly moon-fungus. Stopping en route they contaminate a space station with the fungus, which soon begins to take over the entire place. Mutiny in Outer Space has significant plot and character elements in common with Gene Rodenberry's Star Trek. The major plot device of a deadly alien organism imperiling a crew is also seen in the Andromeda Strain as well the Alien franchise. Common characters include the plucky doctor, a vivacious communications officer and a demure yet attractive scientist. Other similarities include action sequences involving crew members running through corridors and near misses with meteors ala Star Trek the Motion Picture. I recommend fans of Trek watch Mutiny in Outer Space with an eye out for other similarities.

954

Last of the Duanes : Texas Ranger Buck Duane comes home to find that his father, Tom Duane, has been murdered. In revenging the death, he is branded an outlaw and is forced to flee to a small Texas town where others connected to his quest are. There, he is befriended by saloon entertainer Kate and meets and falls in love with Nancy Bowdrey. He finally, after several gunfights, secures the evidence to clear his name, and is aided by his old Texas Ranger comrades in bringing the outlaws to justice.

955

Into the Badlands : After Lance Davis' girlfriend is kidnapped by mutants, he must fight through the bureaucracy to get an expedition to save her. Led by ranger Joan Smith, Davis enters the Badlands to find his girlfriend, encountering a host of strange situations along the way. But, in the Badlands, things are not always what they seem.

956

Pride of the Plains : Hurley wants to sell wild horses and is trying to get the Wild Game Laws that protect them changed. To get his petition signed, his henchman paints his trained horse to look like the wild horse leader and has it kill a man. Johnny Revere finds traces of paint on a horse and tries to arrest Hurley and his men. But he is captured by the gang and is now slated to be the next victim of the trained horse.

"Murphy's Law of Love" : What happens when true love meets Murphy's Law? Murphy's Law states "anything that can go wrong, will go wrong." Kuan Hsiao-Tung ('Chia-ying Lee' (qv)) is known as the "love guru" of the Meet and Match Online Dating Company, able to solve anybody's relationship issues.

Who Wants to Be a Princess? : Several dozen visually pleasing and emotionally stunted young women vie for the chance to marry a wealthy and mysterious groom. They are made to answer a series of incrementally invasive and innuendo-oozing questions about love, men, dating, rumpy-pumpy, what have you, while intermittently parading around on stage in a series of progressively smaller outfits. All of this, while their individual beauty, poise, elegance, and overall worth as a human being is picked apart by a probably drunken and definitely over-pheromoned live audience.

959

Leap: Rise of the Beast : In the near future, the world leaders have given up their power to Vatican City. While most rejoice at the thought of world peace and religious tolerance, Shane Turner and his Leap Crew aren't buying into it. It's not long before they identify the papal power as the Beast of Revelation and speak out against it. In response, the Vatican sets out to hunt down the Leap Crew. The end has begun

960

Last Light of Orion : While on a mission to save the human race from extinction, the Orion VI Spacecraft is stricken at the edge of the galaxy it was destined to arrive. Hope seems all but lost. As unexpected and bizarre events unfold, an astronaut has an enlightening moment, which makes him question everything he knew about life and our existence.

Tracing Skylines : Every skier knows what it's like to call a few friends, pack up, and head out for a trip. Rather than spend another winter chasing storms, five of the top pros and their closest pals embark on their own interpretations of a "trip of a lifetime," taking them deep into new and uncharted territory. Sean Pettit ventures further in his home turf of British Columbia. Watch as he trades the comfy cat lodge for a glacier camp - finding unexpected sources of fun in the backcountry. Pep Fugas pinpoints a remote AK lighthouse to use as a home base, where he launches a heli expedition and finds fresh terrain to attack. Karl Fostvedt takes urban skiing to a whole new level by spending his time searching for the perfect jib, drop and jump amidst the concrete jungle that is Detroit. Julien Regnier is found trekking the grueling 100km historic high alpine route between Chamonix, France and Zermatt, Switzerland. Finally, Bobby Brown brings the crew back together for a spring session to wrap a season that won't be soon forgotten. Tracing Skylines follows these five skiers on some incredible trips. Where will you go next?

Saawan... The Love Season : Born in Patiala, widower Fakirchand Kapoor lives a poor lifestyle with two daughters, the younger of which is Kajal, and collects recyclables and antiques (Bhangar) for a living. He re-locates to the United States, makes a lot of money, changes his name to Fakki Cappar, and returns to live in Bandra, Mumbai, gets his elder daughter married, and soon becomes the grandfather of Gudiya. Then one day he gets a visit from his childhood friend, who used to be a vegetable vendor, but is now a wealthy businessman and they rekindle their friendship. His friend tells him that the purpose of this visit is to solemnize the marriage of his son, Raj, and Kajal, who met in Cape Town and have fallen in love with each other. Both arrange for a formal engagement on Kajal's birthday. Both do not know that Kajal will soon come to know that her dad is going to pass away on the day of her engagement, there will be an accident involving 3 cars, the death of 6 people, and that, she, herself is going to die very soon. Kajal Kapoor meets Raj and both is in love with each other. Their dads do approve of this match and they get engaged to each other but Kajal's life changes when she meets with a male who confides to her that her dad will pass away which does happen and then on another occasion this same male informs her that there will be an accident which involves 3 motor vehicles in which 6 people will die which does come to pass. Now believing that this man prediction is more or less accurate; Kajal decides to re-visit him only to be told that she will meet with her death very soon.

West of the Brazos : Returning to see his mother, Shamrock gets into a gunfight and afterwards the wounded Marshal gets him to take his badge and assume his identity. He arrives to find his mother has died, oil has been discovered on her ranch, and a man impersonating him is about to be declared the heir. In court, not only does the fake heir win but Shamrock is arrested for impersonating an Officer.

Call of Duty: Siege : A strategy game with card game elements, created by an in-house studio of Activision. The story takes place in the same universe as Call of Duty: Infinite Warfare, connecting some of the threads left out by the game. The players assume the role of a captain of the Retribution, a star cruiser in service of United Nations Space Alliance. The organization suffered serious territorial losses to rebel forces. Our task is to stop the rebellion, and stop the conflict from escalating further. The gameplay in Call of Duty: Siege mainly consists of storming enemy bases, implemented in form of inverted tower defense mechanics. The summoned units approach the objective using the shortest way possible, and our only method of intervention is using special ability cards, so the choice of the drop point is crucial. During the game, we slowly build a deck of offensive cards, representing heroes, mechs, and flying machines. In order to facilitate the defense of the controlled territory, we employ a defense-focused deck. Aside from the single player campaign, the title has a competition-oriented multiplayer mode, and the ability to create and join guilds, which are known as Alliances in the game's universe.

Saga of Love: The Kingdom of Angels : The trilogy "Saga of Love" is a fairy tale depicting the inter-dimensional journey of two souls - Alexander and Anna, time-traveling from the Kingdom of Angels to Earth, to the Kingdom of Darkness, to the Kingdom of Eternity and beyond. The first film "Saga of Love: The Kingdom of Angels" portrays the spiritual birth of Alexander's and Anna's souls, in the celestial realm of the fairy tale kingdom of angels and magical creatures. The couple finds themselves in love lifetime after lifetime on Earth only to be separated by distance, obstacles and karmic events.

966

Guardians of the Wild : Haman is after the Warren ranch and kidnaps his daughter Madge forcing her to write a note. He uses the note to get Warren to sign over his deed. But Madge gets Rex the wonder horse to take a note to Ranger Jerry Lane and Jerry frees Madge only to learn that Warren will be killed as soon as he signs.

967

Four Deadly Reasons : Sometimes when you turn over a new leaf all you find is dirt. This is a story that captures the inner struggle of a man determined to change his life and regain his freedom. Gambling debts, a new bride and a baby on the way force New York City street hustler Bobby Venuti (Richard Castellano, Analyze This), to rethink his life style and move upstate. But an ominous cloud looms over Bobby. When the crowd he ran with and owes money to catches up with him (Vinny Vella, The Sopranos, Casino and Joe Rigano, Analyze This, Mickey Blue Eyes) this once sleepy town turns into a hot bed of criminal activity.

968

The French Encounter : For the first time, a love story goes beyond national boundaries. When Jean Leclerc (the jilted, handsome French tycoon) arrives on Indian soil to construct his glass float, the last thing he expects is to be slapped, scratched, bitten, and kissed-all in one evening. Imagine his shock when he comes face-to-face with a beautiful, ferocious Bengal cat. Angry and aroused, Jean forgets all the reasons why he should not get involved with another woman, especially one on the point of marriage. Katrina Santiago, the fiery twenty-nine-year-old Indian virgin has no time for affairs-at least that's what she thinks until she faces God's gift to women, Jean, the drop-dead gorgeous hunk who stirs her up with a glance. Bold and outrageous, he brings out a personality in her she never thought exists: she wants to do things-wicked things-with him. But JLC is looking for a diversion while Katrina is looking for . . . well, she isn't sure anymore. The French Encounter takes you on a fun-loving ride through the trials and tribulations of an Indo-French relationship. It shows how two societies can blend and live harmoniously if the individuals are willing to sacrifice their inner convictions. But it also tells of the stubbornness of two strong personalities, refusing to compromise despite their intense feelings for each other.

969

The Cloning of Joanna May : Joanna once was married to Carl May, a very rich and powerful nuclear energy magnate. They love each other, but had to divorce after Joanna was caught on an incidental love affair. Since then Carl has made Joanna's life impossible. 10 years later she's fed up with the situation and decides to visit him, only to find that once he made three copies of her.

970

Oath of Vengeance : Steve Kinney and his henchman, Mort, are trying to stir up trouble between the local ranchers and farmers, behind a wave of rustling and lawlessness. Mort kills Vic, a

Kirby cowhand, and lays the blame on Dan Harper, the leader of the farmers faction. Storekeeper Fuzzy Q. Jones, fearful of losing the outstanding charge-accounts he has on his books, drags his reluctant pal, Billy Carson, into the fray, and the two soon prove Kinney and his henchmen to be behind the valley's troubles.

The Shopper's Secret : Arabella, a struggling fashion designer takes on a job working as a personal shopper for Marylin- a successful erotic novelist. One day, Arabella is sneakily trying on some of Marilyn's expensive garments, when Marilyn unexpectedly comes home early.....but she is not alone. Arabella hides and watches as Marilyn enters with an attractive man who is not her husband. The pair make love on the bed and Arabella is turned on by what she sees. Arabella continues to hide and watches Marilyn's many affairs take place in the bedroom, until one day she is caught by Marilyn who admits that she knew Arabella had been watching the whole time. Things get steamy between the pair, but soon they will be confronted by someone who knows about their affair and will do anything to stop it.

972

The Freedom Quest of Oney Judge : Oney "Ona" Judge was an enslaved servant of George and Martha Washington, and the details of her life and daring escape in 1796 were well-preserved through interviews by abolitionist newspapers later in her life. The Freedom Quest of Oney Judge is a fictionalized account of actual historic events, produced for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation in Virginia as part of its HERO Live. series. In this three act program, the story begins a decade after Oney's escape, when a smug and supercilious nephew of Martha Washington finds Oney and tries to bully her back to Mount Vernon. The tale proceeds in a series of flashbacks, showing why she decided to attempt escape and how she managed to leave her life of slavery behind. It also chronicles the efforts of President Washington to re-capture Oney years later using maddeningly hush-hush methods in hopes of avoiding public scrutiny and censure. The slave owners are shown as cheerful and insipid, later dismayed that a well-treated slave would repay them with such ingratitude by running away. While she was not physically mistreated, Oney (Mary Carter), like all other slaves, was considered no more than possessions equivalent to, say, livestock or furniture, something Oney feels keenly and resents deeply. But when Oney is sent with the family to Philadelphia, she witnesses a place where Black people live and work as free men and women, a place where there are few slaves and Black children even attend school. A local Black cobbler mentions to Oney that Pennsylvania law says that any slave brought to the state must be freed after six months. Oney, who has been in Pennsylvania for more than two years, realizes the Washingtons have probably been circumventing the law by taking her out of the state every so often, effectively restarting the "six-month clock" each time. Outraged, Oney bides her time until she sees the opportunity to slip away and pursue a new life as a free woman. The quest leads her to freedom, but not to a life of peace, as she must continue to evade her former slave masters and the law, even after she is married and has a child.

The Vanishing Outpost : This series of Lash La Rue "Western Adventure Productions", financed by Southern theatre-owners J. Francis White and Joy Houck, was put together by the husband-wife combo of Ron Ormond and June Carr with much use of stock footage from the Lash LaRue series they had made for Screen Guild distribution a few years earlier(hence the frequent references and use of the town name Rhyolite), and is primarily a confused mish-mash of new footage incorporated with footage from other La Rue films, to the extent that they even cannibalized footage from Western Adventure films before they were through. This one features a prolonged saloon encounter between Fuzzy and a saloon tough, The Bad Hombre(Archie Twitchell), who is picking on a quiet character, Walker (Riley Hill), before Lash comes to the rescue. Walker is an undercover Pinkerton Agent and gets Lash and Fuzzy involved in cleaning up the Taggart (stock footage)/Jackson (new footage) gang, and employs an element(new footage) of the gang using the "tin can telegraph" to relay coded messages, and the old Robert Emmett Tansey stand-by plot(stock footage) of using crooks to catch crooks, which accounts for the "Alexander White" original screenplay credit in the event Tansey took offense at the use of his plot, which he had employed at least six times in the past himself.

Robbers of the Range : Rancher Jim Drummond refuses to sell his ranch to a land agent named Greeley. The latter with Monk and Blackie, henchmen of the railroad purchasing agent, Rankin, frame Jim for the murder of rancher Williams and Jim is arrested and sent to Blue Mesa for trial. On the way, the stage he is riding in with a deputy sheriff is attacked by Rankin's men. The sheriff and a young gunman named Curly Yantis are killed, and Jim drives the stage into Blue Mesa and poses as Curly Yantis, explaining that Jim Drummond was killed. Jim's ranch hands Smokey and Whopper ride into town and Jim tells them what has transpired. The ranchers have formed a protective association, with Roy Tremaine as the head. Jim, Whopper and Smokey help Tremaine raise enough money to pay off a mortgage and save his ranch. Jim begins to fall for Tremaine's pretty daughter Alice. Monk and Greeley frame Tremaine for the murder of rancher Higgins but Jim and his friends capture Greeley and force him to tell where the evidence is that will free Tremaine. The trial is set for the next day, and Rankin's men are guarding the town to keep him from getting in with Greeley. Rankin is shocked when railroad executive Colonel Lodge arrives to look the situation over for himself. The jury is rigged and Tremaine is found guilty, but Jim comes in with Greeley with the new evidence. Rankins realizes his game is up and that Lodge is onto him, and he and his gang prevent anybody from leaving the courthouse while they prepare to leave town with all the ill-gained money they have acquired. Jim and the other ranchers prevent this and capture the crooks, and Lodge promises to make things right with the ranchers. Out to obtain land for the new railroad, Rankin has tricked rancher Jim Drummond and has had him framed for murder. As Jim is being transferred the stage is attacked and all are killed except him. He now assumes the identity of the gunfighter who was killed in the attack and sets out to clear himself. When Rankin uses the same trick to frame another rancher, Jim is ready. Rancher Jim Drummond is framed for murder by crooked railroad agent J.R. Rankin, who will stop at nothing to gain valuable properties in the path of the future railroad.

"Icarus: Twist of Fates" : 2500 A.D. approximately 300 years after The Uniting War. A world war that destroyed society as we know it. This massive war was meant for the uniting of the world, for all to live under the one democracy and speak the one language. The people who fought for this one democracy are called The Perfectionists believing world hunger, poverty and abuse would cease to exist once the new world was established, the perfect utopia. Their intentions were good and were designed to create peace worldwide but an American weapon still in its testing stage designed to end the war but also completely destroyed society as we know it. It was soon dubbed 'The End', a biological weapon that specifically attacks the human lungs, killing very slowly but very effectively. 3.8% of the current population was immune, the ones who were not are residing in massive metal domes and are governed by new dictatorships and very strict rules. Capital cities are now independent and wish for each others downfall. Outside these domes are cannibals, militias and rebel societies. Each dangerous but insignificant compared to the Dome Governments. Cannibals - scavengers and traders they travel in groups known as packs and use their sheer numbers to advantage on the battlefield. Militia make their money through trading slaves and mining for the mysterious purple gems which suddenly appeared after the war - Purpureus Navitas (Latin for purple energy). These gems are used as ammunition for the militia weapons and power source for most of their devices on the battlefield. The rebels uphold a fort in the middle of the Simpson desert known as the Rebel Society, its rules and guidelines are very similar to today's society, have very well trained men and advanced weaponry. This story is just about Icarus trying to get to the Dome but finding out who she is and what she did.

Lost Gold of Khan : When Chengiz Khan was a young boy, he was rescued from the slavery of the Targutai by a wise monk from the land of the Yeti. To protect him, the monk attached a magical blood red ruby to the palm of his hand. This ruby gave him great strength over his enemies and gave rise to the legend that Chengiz was born with a mysterious destiny to rule the world. But the power of the ruby terrified Chengiz, and the demons inside the jewel were beyond his control. Nearing death, he ordered his son to take the ruby and half his gold and hide it at a secret location as the monk had instructed him. But after his death, the legend of the ruby and the lost city of gold spreads throughout the world. When Yukon Miller, an adventurer and cryptologist, discovers a map of the secret location, he sets out to discover the truth. Stalked by a beautiful Russian, an Arab billionaire and the Chinese red army, he quickly realizes the murderous consequences of everyone's lust for gold. But he could never have imagined the powerful cycle of karma contained in the stone. It is a force so strong, it could liberate Tibet, free the people of China, and change the world forever.

The Girl on a Motorcycle : Newly-married Rebecca leaves her husband's Alsatian bed on her prized motorbike - symbol of freedom and escape - to visit her lover in Heidelberg. En route she indulges in psychedelic reveries as she relives her changing relationship with the two men. The newly married Rebecca leaves her husband, the school teacher Raymond, and drives her motorcycle to meet her lover Daniel in Helledberg. While crossing Europe, she recalls some moments of Raymond's life and how she met Daniel at her father's bookstore and then in an inn. It's been only two short months of marital life, and rebellious Rebecca suffocates already in her dull relationship with the down-to-earth and timid school teacher husband Raymond. As a result, without guilt nor remorse, Rebecca decides to leave him and their dreary bleak town, to be free and alive, and most importantly, close to her intellectual perfect lover Daniel in Heidelberg. As free-spirited Rebecca dashes into the endless and cold highways on the saddle of her brutal pitch-black Harley wearing nothing but her skin-tight leather jumpsuit, her mind wanders from lover to husband, reflecting on her relationships and erotic experiences. However, what does the future hold for the imperfect trio?

Goodnight for Justice: The Measure of a Man : It's the late nineteenth century in the Wyoming Territory, known as one of the most lawless regions on the continent. John Goodnight, a traveling circuit court judge, hates lawyers, even when he was one himself, but believes in justice. Such an example of his lawyer hatred is toward Lucius Breed, the leading lawyer in his latest stop of the small town of Rollins. John considers Lucius as corrupt and self-serving as many of the people John convicts. In Rollins, John is reunited with the former Callie Bluepointe, a former flame from their days in Chicago a decade and a half ago. John will learn why Callie stayed in Rollins instead of what was her plan to travel to San Francisco: the birth of her son, Will Donohue. John learns of Will's existence in an auspicious manner: Will is the only person captured among Deke Spradling's gang in their attempted getaway following Deke's robbery of the local bank, the second such in recent memory. Although Callie has not seen Will in a few years after he ran off, Callie stands by Will as being a good boy, which places her standing in Rollins in jeopardy as most of the townsfolk want Will to hang as he is the prime suspect as the gunman who killed one of the townsfolk in a previous robbery by the Spradling gang. John has to protect Will against the lynch mob mentality until Will gets a fair trial. Although not admitting to anything regarding the murder or involvement in the robbery, Will defends Deke in the court of public opinion. Beyond what happens to Will, John knows the town cannot feel safe until Deke is captured. John has to decide whether to trust Will in his search for Deke. He also has to figure out how Callie's information about Will will affect his judgment about how to treat Will in this case, and thus how Will will emerge on the other side, both physically and emotionally.

The Adventures of Ace X and Kid Velvet is the English Language, Hong Kong release of the film. It is a slightly different version of the movie that rocked the world of Superhero Action Adventure.

Pioneers of the West : This entry in Republic's "Three Mesquiteer" series, that skipped back forth in time much like Brick Bradford in his "Time Top" machine, finds the Mesquiteers, Stony Brooke, Rusty Joslin and Rico, intervening when an 1870's wagon train of settlers, headed by Dr. Bailey, is attacked by Indians. The wagon train leader is killed and the Mesquiteers agree to guide the settlers to their destination. Bailey and his daughter Anna and the other settlers have been lured westward by offers of cheap land. Arriving, they find that the land sold them by Judge Platt and Sheriff Gorman is practically worthless, but through hard labor and courage they manage to clear it and have reached the point where they are about to make a fair living when they are beset by exorbitant taxes. Judge Platt and his cronies have information that a railroad is to be run through the territory, and they plan to break the settlers by high taxes, regain the land at forced sales, and sell it to the railroad. The Mesquiteers arrange for a cattle sale in order to pay the taxes but Platt and his henchmen, led by Steve Carson, contrive to rob the Mesquiteers as they return from Omaha, and make it appear that the Mesquiteers took the funds and made up the hold-up story. But Stony, in the guise of the Masked Rider (a plot device much favored in the Mesquiteer films with Livingston following his essay of the title role in "The Lone Ranger Rides Again" serial), and his two friends begin a campaign to end the activities of Platt and his gang. It is 1876 and the wagon train is headed west when the Indians attack. They kill the wagon master so the boys volunteer to lead them to their new homes in Overland Valley. When they get there, they find that they paid too much for what they got, but they clear the land and build their homes. The boys bring cattle to the settlers so that they can begin their herds. When Judge Platt finds that the railroad is coming through the homesteader's land, he tries to force them out with tax after tax and then thugs. But the boys are there to defend the settler's and help them keep their land.

Trail of the Mounties : Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman Sandy Sanderson (Russell Hayden) is given the task of rounding up a gang of fur thieves led by his twin brother Johnny (Russell Hayden). The brother, by masquerading as Sandy in a Mountie uniform, puts suspicion of fur stealing and murder on Sandy. Sandy narrowly escapes a lynching before escaping and bringing his brother and the rest of the gang to justice.

1002

Brand of the Outlaws : Gary Gray arrives only to be caught up in the rustling activities of Ben Holt and his gang. First Holt brands him for rustling and then frames him for murder. Proven innocent, Gary foils the gang's stage holdup and then heads after Holt whom he now knows to be the real killer. But Holt knows he is coming and waits unseen in ambush.

1003

Active Shooter : A sex addicted, deranged, action actor travels across America to make a movie about mass killers - all the while hilariously ranting against corrupt Hollywood icons and international faith based terrorism. How does an Actor become a killer?

1004

Pals of the Pecos : Dan Burke is after a mail contract and Stevens through his henchman Keno is out to stop him. When Burke's son Larry brings the payroll he is murdered and the Three Mesquiteers blamed. Young Tim Burke breaks them out of jail and they start the timed mail run to obtain the contract. But Keno and his men plan to stop them by using dynamite to make a road block.

1005

Goodnight for Justice: Queen of Hearts : John Goodnight crosses paths with a stagecoach under attack and comes to the rescue of its passengers, one of whom is a beautiful woman who may or may not have been a prisoner being transported by a detective who did not survive the attack. Their journey together takes them to a gambling riverboat, where Goodnight discovers her true identity. It's the late nineteenth century in the Wyoming Territory, known as one of the most lawless regions on the continent. John Goodnight, a traveling circuit court judge, hates lawyers, even when he was one himself, but believes in justice. On his professional travels, he saves Lucy Truffaut, a proper young woman traveling by stagecoach with a Pinkerton guard to her home in Philadelphia, as the stagecoach is ambushed. What John is unaware of is that Lucy is truly a grifter, wanted in three states for her criminal activities, and that the Pinkerton guard was not there for her protection but to escort her to jail in Fort Collins, Colorado. John is also unaware that the seeming Apache ambush of the stagecoach was orchestrated by Col. Cyril Knox, formerly of the cavalry. Angry and violent Knox, once having professed to love Lucy, is now out to kill her for using him. As John continues to accompany Lucy on her travels, they will still have to contend with Knox and the Apaches, all with John unaware of Lucy being wanted, that is unless John's keen sense of human perception can see through Lucy's veneer to who she truly is as a person.

The Lackey : In this action flick, JUDE ST. CLERE discovers he has a daughter by his junkie ex-girlfriend. He vows to take care of her and leave his shadowed past behind him. Completely broke and with his daughter starving, he reluctantly takes on one last job which quickly entwines him dead smack in the middle of a bloody mob war. Knowing that his chances of making it out alive are slim, he plunges in guns blazing - because sometimes the only way out is to go all in.

Nickolai of the North : Based on the children's novel by Lucy Daniel Raby, Nickolai of the North is the heartwarming action fantasy of Santa's true origin. Set many years ago, it follows the adventures of the last surviving elf, Nickolai, as he journeys north to the mysterious city of Doransk, to uncover the fate of his people and save the world.

1008

Cult of the Crystal Skull : One year after their father's death, two brothers find an ancient relic inside a wooden box. The events that follow soon place them at the center of a deadly battle between good and evil. Starring, Bryan Mark Jones (from Keichu Kai Black Belt Hall Of Fame), as Tim, in his first starring role, and featuring Don Mac (Actor, Super (2010)) as Gargantuan. This B-movie tribute film, reminiscent of the late 1970's, is full of nonstop action and big laughs.

1009

Sailplane Grand Prix in the Andes : The decision to film the FAI 3rd World Sailplane Grand Prix final in Chile was one happy consequence of the global economic downturn. The Vitacura club in Santiago had already demonstrated its organisational flair in 2009, and with other nations uncertain about whether or not they could host the 3rd Gliding World Grand Prix, it seemed logical to go with a venue that already had the infrastructure so freshly in place. And, with apologies to the world's other great mountain backdrops, what better place to showcase the pure natural beauty of gliding than the Andean Cordillera? The rest is history: a specialist film crew was assembled by Mario Hytten, and they recorded the glorious ups and downs of Sailplane Grand Prix that you see on the film. And if that's the history, just imagine the future.

1010

The Fourth Horseman : Learning that Molly O'Rourke owns the entire town of Stillwell but the back taxes have not been paid, Ben Jones takes over. When Molly arrives and learns of the tax situation, Tom rides off to pay them. But Jones is on to Tom and sends his entire gang after him.

1011

Law of the Sixgun : A young man bent on avenging his father's death accepts the job of town marshal, which immediately puts him in conflict with the Manning brothers who lead a gang of rustlers and murders. Quickly realizing that the new marshal is too good with a gun for any of them to handle, the Mannings send for the notorious gunfighter, the Rio Kid. Rio discovers that the marshal is, in fact, his long-lost brother and sides with the young lawman to clean up the territory.

The Hanging Tree : In 1873, on the Gold Trail, Montana, the mysterious and controlling Dr. Joseph Frail arrives in the small town of Skull Creek with miners in a gold rush. Dr. Frail buys a cabin on the top of a hill and he sees the smalltime thief Rune wounded and chased by a mob that wants to hang him. Dr. Frail helps and heals Rune; but in return, he demands that the young man becomes his bond servant. The alcoholic healer and preacher George Grubb tells to the locals that Dr. Frail, who is an excellent gambler and gunfighter, is a devil and has a mysterious past but nobody gives attention to his words. Soon the stagecoach is robbed by thieves that kill the passengers but the coachman survives and three days later he reaches Skull Creek. He tells that the horses had speed down the hill with a young woman inside the stagecoach. The men organize a pursuit and the rude Frenchy Plante finds the Swedish Elizabeth Mahler burnt and blind. Dr. Frail and Rune take care of her and they learn that Elizabeth and her father, who was killed in the heist, had come to America to settle down. When Elizabeth is healed, she falls in an unrequited love with Dr. Frail and she decides to stay in Skull Creek to seek gold with Rune. They form a partnership with Frenchy and Dr. Frail secretly finances them to begin their business with The Lucky Lady Mine. When Elizabeth learns that Dr. Frail is helping her, she is upset that he is trying to control them and she promises to pay her debt to him someday. During a heavy rain, a tree falls down at the mine and the trio of partners finds a fortune in gold underground. Frenchy takes some gold to town to buy drinks with the locals and when he is drunk, he takes actions that will affect the lives of the locals and Skull Creek, mostly of Dr. Frail, Elizabeth and Rune. This laid-back Western stars genre stalwart Gary Cooper as a new doctor in a gold-mining camp, who devotes his time to treating blind girl Maria Schell. Unfortunately, however, the doctor has a rather sinister past which may place himself and his associates in considerable danger.

The Dream of Alvareen : Alvareen is the story of a quirky & confused young woman named Alice. Alice is trying to discover why she hears different 'voices' in her mind. Through the help of an earnest, devoted friend named Kevin, the guidance of a Tarot Reader and the manipulations of the scheming Dream Mistress, Alice finds herself in the strange & mysterious world of Castle Yesterday. At the Castle, a wicked wizard named Octagon confronts Alice. He magically splits Alice into two beings: her current self and her past self when she was a Warrior Goddess named Alvareen. Alvareen is a fierce, beautiful princess whose father, King Charles, was killed because of Octagon's quest for power. She is determined to avenge her name and is impatient with Alice's seeming weakness. She reluctantly teaches Alice fighting skills and together they battle both the Shadow Warriors and ultimately, each other. Throughout her journey, Alice meets a myriad of Pirates, Elves, Faeries, Trolls and many other magical and unusual creatures. At the end of the story, Alice must learn how to use her newfound powers wisely and to finally discover real love.

1014

Belly of the Beast : Belly of the Beast is an Action Thriller about a small town in Austinville, Ohio where a very influential and powerful person (Cort) runs the town by placing people in high positions to do his bidding. Since Cort came to town, children have mysteriously disappeared; and when Nick's ex-girlfriend (Candace) gets involved in a relationship with Cort, James and Nick become concerned for her safety. This Father and son Special Forces team go through extreme measures to unmask Cort's true agenda in the town and utilize their military and martial arts skills to bring justice to a town that has been ravished with corruption.

1015

Across the Plains : Two young brothers are separated when their wagon train is attacked and their parents killed. One brother Cherokee is raised by Indians and the other, the Kansas Kid, by the outlaw gang leader Buff. Twenty years later they unknowingly meet again when the Kid goes after wagons being guided by Cherokee. When a wagon train is attacked by outlaws led by Buff Gordon, the only two survivors are two young brothers, Jack and Jimmy Winters. Jack hides and is found by a group of friendly Indians who raise him as their own, while Jimmy is taken away by the outlaws and Buff raises him as his son. Jack becomes known as Cherokee, a law-abiding man while Jimmy, following in the footsteps of his foster father, becomes an outlaw known as The Kansas Kid. The brothers' trails soon cross but neither realize they are brothers.

Jesse James vs. the Daltons : Joe Branch ('Brett King (I)' (qv)), reputed to be the son of Jesse James, comes riding into Coffeyville Kansas in 3-D, looking for proof one way or the other regarding the question of who is father was. He rescues Kate Manning ('Barbara Lawrence (I)' (qv)) from being lynched by a mob because she had killed the son of the towns's leading citizen while defending her honor, or what was left of it. Rescuing Kate is an important plot hinge, in a movie that makes little or no sense historically or plot-wise, as her father had ridden with Jesse James. Joe also has an idea that he can learn something by making contact with the Daltons, and his method of doing that is by holding up the train to steal an Army payroll, as he knows the Daltons had intended to steal it themselves and knows they will come looking for him. Being smart enough to beat them to the payroll evidently doesn't equate to being smart enough to know the Daltons are going to be more than a little miffed when they find him. The title is a misnomer since the long-dead Jesse James does not appear, and Joe also turns out to not be his son.

On the Edge : Dakota Smith is an ex-cop and former private eye with a proclivity for community service. When a young basketball player entangles himself with drug dealers, he turns to Dak for help. Eventually goons are sent to kill the hoopster, but they hit the family of Rex Stevens by mistake. Frustrated by the incompetent and crooked police, the trio of Smith, Stevens, and their friend Frank Harris then battle the drug dealers for control of the streets. Also the heroes must tangle with Felix, a stealthy and ruthless hitman.

1018

The Sydical Tape : On the 15th of February 2013 A small cluster of meteors hit off the coasts of Ireland, Russia and France but theses were no meteors. This was a planned attack by an alien tribe called "The Symonians" who have returned to claim what is theirs. Can the remaining group survive the impending attack?

1019

Faux and Orchard: Little Deaths : The second movie in the Mission Park Quinology continues with Tessa Faux, Apple Orchard and Cherry Pie. When a genetically altered super-virus is scheduled for release all across the country, only "The Woman Who Knows All" and her vigilante team will be able to save the day. Picking up directly after the events of Ember: The Sapphire Empire, Little Deaths is a direct continuation of the action.

1020

The Return of Captain Nemo : Two US Navy divers discover the Nautilus trapped underwater, with Captain Nemo in suspended animation inside for the last century. Once Nemo is revived, the government makes a deal with him to refit his ship with a few modern technologies in exchange for his helping to defeat Professor Cunningham, a mad genius threatening to destroy Washington with a missile from his own submarine unless he is paid a billion dollars. Later, Nemo continues and completes his search for the sunken city of Atlantis, delayed 100 years by his long time in stasis.

1021

The Man from Wyoming : The manager of a sheep ranch, Ned Bannister is falsely accused of the murder of David Messiter, a neighboring cattle rancher. Bannister's employer, Halloway, would like to own the cattle rancher's spread. When Helen Messiter, niece of the deceased, arrives to investigate the murder, Halloway, the real culprit, tries to seduce her. Bannister saves Helen, and he marries her after his innocence is established.

1022

Fluctuations : A bizarre don't-even-try-to-make-sense-of-it bombardment of sexual imagery that plays like stream of consciousness from a degenerate: threesomes, foursomes, lesbians, bondage, hair-whipping (!) and, believe it or not, even kung-fu. Avant-garde masterpiece or pure gutter trash? Perhaps both.

1023

Tricks of a Woman : Dessi, a down and out young woman, is wasting her life away. One day a fashion photographer, Rex, notices her on an outing with his rival, Albert. Rex reluctantly accepts a bet that he can transform Dessi into a super-model. Dessi transforms herself from ugly duckling to swan -- only to learn she was the object of a bet.

1024

The Avenging Angel : Revisionist western about a freelance bodyguard hired to protect a Mormon prophet from a gang of would-be assassins in 19th Century Utah.

1025

Death Run to Istanbul : Gary is a drugged out former kickboxer who owes gangsters $15,000. Alonso, the young mob chief, forgives the debt if Gary is willing to transport a briefcase full of drugs to Istanbul. He loses the case, the criminals come after him, and his former girlfriend, Sam, must now come to his rescue.

Through the Storm : What is your purpose? That is the question facing CIA Agent Joshua Winters after tragedy and failure cause him to question why he has even been put on this earth.

Meanwhile, he is in a race against time as he seeks to uncover the clues that will lead him to the mastermind of a terrorist plot against the country he is sworn to defend. As he comes closer to solving the mystery, he is pushed to the breaking point in his relationship with God and forced to choose what kind of man he will be. Through the Storm is the first feature length film from Harbor Lights Productions. It is an action packed thriller filled with the intrigue of espionage and terrorism that also delivers a timeless scriptural message about what it means to truly honor God with your life.

Dogs of Chinatown : When a war breaks out between the Italian Mafia and Chinese Triad, Boss Wu needs someone to infiltrate Little Italy. Enter Jack, a lonely desperate soul at the end of his rope who is groomed into the Triad's top assassin. But as the hard-boiled killer rises to the top, he falls for Boss Wu's favorite mistress, Jin, putting both their lives at risk. Now Jack must battle his way through the Mafia and the Triad to be with the woman he loves.

1028

The Bushwhackers : Plot here has Confederate veteran Jeff Waring arriving in Independence, Missouri shortly after the Civil War, and intending never again to use a gun. He finds that rancher Artemus Taylor, an arthritic despot, and his henchies, Sam Tobin and Cree, are forcing out the settlers in order to claim their land for the incoming railroad. The plot nearly predates "The Great Train Robbery" in age but the gritty execution and well-acted performances take it out of the norm... way out, in a couple of instances. Brassy Myrna Dell is on hand as Taylor's independent daughter, only slightly less meaner than her father, and the always welcome Dorothy Malone is the pretty school marm on the side of good. Needless to say, Ireland's passive outlook on life changes before the end.

1029

Path of Exile : Path of Exile is an online Action RPG set in the dark fantasy world of Wraeclost. It is designed around a strong barter-based online item economy, deep character customisation, competitive PvP and ladder races. The game is completely free and will never be "pay to win".

1030

Winners of the West : One of the writers of this serial, George H. Plympton, dusted the story off and re-sold it to Sam Katzman for a Columbia 1951 serial called "Roar of the Iron Horse". "Winners of the West" was Universal's 47th sound-era serial, falling between "Flash Gordon Conquers the Universe" and "Junior G-Men", and while it utilizes plenty of stock footage featuring Cliff Lyons doubling Buck Jones and Johnny Mack Brown from earlier Universal serials, the use of such is less than in most Universal serials of the time. Jeff Ramsay (Dick Foran), assistant to John Hartford (Edward Keane), President of the Hartford Transcontinental Railroad, is fighting to advance the line through Hell's Gate Pass. King Carter (Harry Woods), self-styled ruler of the land beyond the pass, plans to block the construction of the railroad. Carter hires Snakeye (Charles Stevens), a renegade half-breed, to lead the Indians on raids against the construction camps. Hartford's daughter, Claire (Anne Nagel), is captured and held hostage until Jeff and scout Tex Houston (Tom Fadden) come to her rescue. Spurred on by Carter, the Indians and some hired henchmen rob supply trains, drive surveyors off and burn down the telegraph station. Finally, in a battle at Black Hawk, Carter's gang is wiped out by Jeff and Jim Jackson (James Craig.) Carter is turned over to the law, and a peace treaty is signed with Chief War Eagle (Chief Yowlachie) . Jeff, and his bride, Claire are happy as pioneers welcome the first transcontinental train. Hartford is building a railroad heading west and King Carter is out to stop him from going through his town by goading the Indians into attacking the railroad crew. The head of the crew is Jeff Ramsay and he and his sidekick Tex are repeatedly there to foil Carter's attempts.

South of St. Louis : In Missouri during the Civil War, the Three Bell Ranch belonging to Kip Davis, Charlie Burns and Lee Price is destroyed by Luke Cottrell and his guerrilla raiders. Cottrell plunders the region for personal gain rather than in the name of the Union, as he claims. Driven from their land, many settlers move to Texas, still a neutral territory. Kip, Charlie and Lee go to Brownsville, Texas, looking for Cottrell. After a fistfight between Kip and Cottrell, Cottrell is told to leave Texas. While Lee decides to join the Confederate army, Kip and Charlie try to raise money to rebuild their ranch. Eventually, they get involved in smuggling arms for the Confederacy, bypassing the blockade imposed by the Union. This lucrative enterprise brings them into conflict with Cottrell who, after leaving the Union cause, is also smuggling guns out of Mexico. After a series of conflicts, crosses and double-crosses between Cottrell and the three friends, the Confederates capture Brownsville. Kip suggests they all return to rebuild their cattle ranch. However, Lee chooses to remain in the Confederate army and continue the fight. Charlie, who's more interested in money and gunrunning than in ranching, decides to continue the smuggling. Kip and Charlie continue the smuggling together. After they high-jack a gun shipment belonging to Cottrell, the two partners find themselves in open conflict with Cottrell's outfit. During an ambush set-up by Cottrell, a gunfight ensues but the two friends prevail. Cottrell is killed by his former henchman, Slim. After the Civil War, Kip moves to Mexico. Charlie opens a saloon in Brownsville where he hires some of Cottrell's ex-henchmen, including Slim. Lee is disbanded from the army and joins the Texas Rangers in Brownsville. This puts him at odds with Charlie who's involved in a variety of shady businesses. Lee is the only lawman in Brownsville whereas Charlie has Cottrell's former outfit behind him. Word gets to Kip in Mexico about an imminent shootout between Lee and Charlie. To even out the odds, Kip rides to Brownsville to help Lee in the final showdown.

The Tower : 'Lola' is the entirely self-sufficient, computerized security system for the Sandawn corporation. When Lola is left in charge of the building for one night, she decides the late-working employees and their acquaintances would make an excellent source of energy for her systems to function on. Seeking out the 'heat sources', the remaining people trapped in the building must find a way to shut down Lola before the morning.

1039

Jeff Steele: Children of the Doomed : Set on the mythical planet of Kaia, Secret Agent Jeff Steele (Jeff Dodge) returns from a dangerous mission only to find a sinister force at work throughout the city of Buckbean. Under the command of Edwin Stark (Steven Cebula), the two agents begin an investigation into the youth movement of the Avedonian citizenry. A mysterious appearance by the renowned author, Dr. David Vox (John Killeen) causes the Agency to fear corruption within its' own, young ranks. While Steele spies on Vox, he meets an estranged wife named Deliyeh (Cameron Kay) who fears her husband has been lost to this weird following. As the two team up to find her husband, Ralph (John Mason), they discover that Dr. Vox and his young followers are amassing in the Great Deserts of the Noynian Basin to meet their new-found, enigmatic, spiritual-leader; the Maker (Alistair Duff). Can Jeff Steele and Deliyeh prevent the Maker from enacting his deranged vision of "Revolutionary Humanicide"?

1040

The Redhead from Wyoming : In Wyoming Territory, a range war is brewing between entrenched cattle barons and new settlers. Cattle king Reece Duncan is opposed by ambitious gambler Jim Averell, who imports his old flame, shapely saloon queen Kate Maxwell, and sets her up as an alternative cattle buyer. As matters build toward violence, Kate finds she's being taken advantage of. But her only potential ally in staving off carnage is seemingly mild-mannered sheriff Stan Blaine...who distrusts her.

Partners of the Trail : A playboy travels west after having killed his wife's lover. By chance, he happens to run into the man who has been falsely accused of the crime, who is himself on the run. Trem Carr and Paul Malvern remade this one in 1933 as "Sagebrush Trail" with John Wayne, but changed the heroine's role from that of a saloon dancer in this version to that of a storekeeper's daughter in the remake. Since there are sources that assume, for whatever reason, that any two films with the same title are the same story remade again, Monogram's later "Partners of the Trail" with Johnny Mack Brown is NOT a remake of 1931's "Partners of the Trail" from Monogram: Prison escapee Larry Condon is on the trail of a man who, he believes, railroaded him. Eluding the sheriff and his posse, and posing as an outlaw he joins an outlaw gang and becomes friends with John Durant. They both fall in love with dancer Ruby Gerard, working as a waitress to earn money to return home back east. Larry later learns that Durant is the man he is trailing but, because of a bond established between the two, Larry decides to rescue Durant from a life of crime. The gang isn't having any of that but Durant saves Larry's life at the cost of his own and, before he dies, exonerates Larry from the crime he was jailed on.

Cold War Peacemaker: The Story of the Convair B-36 : Cold War Peacemaker is the amazing and unique story of the development of the B-36 very-long-long-range nuclear bomber. From its beginnings during WWII, through construction in a former wild-west cattle town and deployment into the Cold War, the story of the Convair B-36 and how it intimidated the Soviet Union is a fascinating study in politics and technology. In Cold War Peacemaker, experience life during the Cold War as your parents and grandparents lived it and discover and understand how the Convair B-36 played a vital role in saving the free world from communist domination.

Truthful Tulliver : Truthful Tulliver, a Westerner and a journeying newspaperman, followed by Silver Lode Thompson, printer and compositor, arrives in Glory Hole to start a newspaper. He is visited by York Cantrell, an Easterner, whose mining interests keep him in the vicinity. They stand at the office window watching two sisters, Grace and Daisy Burton. The girls are insulted by men hanging around the Forty Rod saloon and dance hall, run by "Deacon" Doyle and secretly owned by York Cantrell. Tulliver rushes to their assistance and incurs the enmity of Doyle. The next day Truthful states, under big headlines, that Doyle must go, and the following morning finds a notice on his door that Doyle will be in the Forty Rod Saloon at ten o'clock, and there is not a pen pusher in Arizona that can run him out of town. Truthful surprises Doyle and his henchmen by coming into the saloon through a rear door, and, from his horse, lassoes and pulls them out into the desert, where he tells them never to return to Glory Hole. That night Truthful is shot at from York Cantrell's room by Doyle, who has returned. Truthful then drives both from town, not knowing that York has wronged Daisy Burton. Daisy confesses to Grace, and Grace finds Truthful, who, misunderstanding, thinks she is the one who cares for Cantrell. He promises to bring him back, and reaches the railroad, intercepts Cantrell, and forces him to return. Then understanding comes. Cantrell wants to marry Daisy and live a new life, and Truthful comprehends his mistake. Grace turns toward him, with her thanks and relief, and sees him watching her with such eloquent eyes that hers fall for a moment. Then she comes to him and with happy faces, hands clasped, they see York Cantrell married to the sister, and as the priest blesses them, Truthful clasps her close. Truthful Tulliver, a newspaperman in the Western town of Glory Hole, comes into conflict with Deacon Doyle, who runs the local saloon. Tulliver runs Doyle out of town, but Doyle returns and tries to kill Tulliver. But Tulliver turns the tables on Doyle and his boss, York Cantrell, and drives both of them out of town. He discovers, however, that the girl he loves, Grace Burton, apparently loves Cantrell, so Tulliver goes after Cantrell for the sake of Grace. What Tulliver doesn't realize though is that it's not Cantrell that Grace loves, it's himself.

Chapters of Love Chasing Sunrise : The love was gone. She lay empty in my arms like a ghost with no heartbeat. I was falling endlessly into the dark eternity of despair, not knowing just how far the crack in my heart would grow, or if the gap would be beyond repair. Years of emptiness and the lost hope were my daily companion, alone and unwilling to settle for anyone less than my soul mate and then I met her.

Mistress of Souls : The Mistress of Souls is a beautiful lesbian mistress practicing complete domination over beautiful teens to perform for her erotic pleasures and fetish fantasies as pony girls. She prefers sensual young straight women that she can seduce and turn into her lesbian sex slaves. She needs to make use of their unpaid labor in order for her to overcome a seemingly unconquerable power for financial gain. But her ultimate desires are seeing those pony-girls at work in her mines during the day and fulfilling her sexual fantasies at night in her bedroom together with her specially chosen friends.

1046

Television's Opening Night: How the Box Was Born : TV presenter Dallas Campbell, engineer Professor Danielle George and engineer Dr Hugh Hunt re-create the opening of the BBC's television service on 2 November 1936. This involves building the mechanical flying-spot cameras that were used by Baird's system.

Ghost Town: The Movie : Dean Teaster's GHOST TOWN "The Movie", is a unique "Eastern" Western. It is N.C. native Dean Teaster's tribute to his father Robert Doyle Teaster and "Ghost Town In The Sky" theme park. The theme park was a large piece of the childhood happiness for Dean's family and many families since its opening in 1961. This story combines actual family facts of the Teaster family fictionalized into a story that encompasses the best elements of the staged gunfights performed by the Legendary "Ghost Town Gunfighters" throughout the years at the park. Many of the original actors have returned for roles in the film. Former "Ghost Town Gunfighters" Robert Bradley once known as "The Apache Kid," Herbert Cowboy Coward "GrandPappy," and Harry Valentine "The Golden Voice of Ghost Town" play pivotal roles in the film as does Alaska Presley who was one of the original park founders. Dean Teaster reprises the role of "Digger" made famous by his father. This movie was created to offset many of the "Hillbilly" stereotypes often depicted with this area. The movie paints a picture of this beautiful mountain region that was settled by the overseas Celtic people. These settlers were full of rich traditions and a true grit that allowed them to survive and thrive during the rugged 1800's period of US History often shown in western films. This movie may well be the birth of a sub genre of the western known as "The Eastern." With a slight romantic edge this movie is chalked full of messages about love, hate, family, forgiveness, redemption and sacrifice. This film builds on a regional theme where conflict was often fought over family honor versus land as often depicted in westerns due to the gold rushes and land acquisitions and expansions. Being a lover of the western genre I think that we have told a story that will entertain many generations of people and with the re-opening of the "Ghost Town In The Sky" theme park we look forward to bright future built upon the past.

Earth Metal I: Epic of Manas : After being alerted to the existence of a secret eugenics lab in the mountains of Tajikistan, Manas, to be played by Craig Edwards, discovers a conspiracy between American industrialist David Koch and Corporate China to take control of Central Asia. He unifies the villagers of Central Asia to take back the disputed territories from China and return the land to the Tajik people. Manas puts David Koch on trial for crimes against humanity and rises to be a world leader. Princess Kyrgyzi, scion of the ancient royal family of the mythical Land of Kyrgyz, returns from exile in England on a humanitarian mission to ensure access to clean water for the children of Central Asia.

Weird Tales 5: The Strange Case of Rhyolite Nevada : In a remote corner of central Nevada on the edge of Death Valley stand the haunting remains of a town that was built to last. Founded in 1904 on a prospector's discovery of gold and the investments of eastern industrialists it soon became a magnet for those seeking quick riches and unscrupulous promoters. It was supposed to be different from other boomtowns as its population swelled to nearly 10,000 but in less than two years it had dwindled to only 600, and soon was abandoned. Yet its ruins are not those of rickety wood shacks but reinforced concrete and the remnants of three story buildings. It was hoped to be the "Chicago" of the West and its very name, "Rhyolite" was taken from a cheerful rosy colored rock found in abundance at the site. The rock itself reflected the hopeful optimism of the people who lived there. But in 1908 everything changed. That year began with the violent murder of a young girl, Mona Bell, whose life was cut short at age 20. It shook the town to its core and a series of events followed which would begin to spell the end of the good times in Rhyolite. A lonely grave on the edge of town far from the regular cemetery is said to be that of Mona Bell's. Today the grave is a tourist attraction and there are rumors of visitations by a mysterious group of dancers who annually celebrate Mona's life and death. What happened to Rhyolite? Who was Mona Bell? And why is there a strange grave that attracts an unusual cult performing strange rituals?

Fade to Winter : Times change, just as each season gives way to the next. For passionate skiers around the globe, however, the time of year can never undermine the enthusiasm for their next great day on snow. Regardless of weather, conditions, or the effort required to get there, "a bad day of skiing still beats a good day at work." As summer eases into fall and fall eventually fades to winter, dreams of skiing occupy our minds and we focus all of our energy on returning to the mountains. MSP Films, the production powerhouse behind MCONKEY and DAYS OF MY YOUTH, is proud to present FADE TO WINTER. Featuring jaw-dropping action from Alaska, Iceland, British Columbia, Japan, Colorado, Italy, and New England, this film captures the spirit of ten skiers who go to great lengths for the sport that they love. Starring Markus Eder, Bobby Brown, Michelle Parker, Mark Abma, Tanner Rainville, Aaron Blunck, James Heim, Sean Jordan, PK Hunder, Alex Schlopy, and others. Narrated by Greg Stump.

Heroes of the Hills : To help relieve overcrowded prison conditions, the Mesquiteers turn their ranch into a work farm. Construction Company man Beaton is hoping for a new prison contract and sets out to see that the experiment is a failure. He lures the Mesquiteers away and then has his henchman dressed as prisoners rob the local ranchers and plant the loot at the Mesquiteers ranch. In the 16th film of Republic's "Three Mesquiteer" series (while 1935's "Powdersmoke Range" and "The Law of the 45's" were based on or featured characters created by William Colt MacDonald, they are not, as shown on Movie Connections, part of the Republic or Three Mesquiteers series and the name "The Three Mesquiteers" was never mentioned in either film, especially the last mentioned as it only featured two of the characters and one of them had a different name.) Stony Brooke, Tucson Smith and Lullaby Joslin, the "Three Mesquiteers", capture a couple of escaped convicts, Red and The Kid and learn that Red, despite having only three months left on his sentence, engineered the escape in order that the "Kid" might get out in the open and save his lungs from the deplorable prison conditions. They return the two convicts to the prison after promising to do all they can to secure their release. They meet with the prison board and learn that the prison is badly overcrowded, but due to the fact that the ranchers of the state are already overtaxed, it is impossible to get the funds to build a new prison. The Mesquiteers suggest that the trustees of the prison be sent to ranches throughout the state where they can work out their time. Thirteen prisoners are paroled to the Mesquiteers, including Red and the Kid. Beaton, head of the Atlas Construction Company, angling to get the job of building a new prison knows that if the "parolee" plan works, it will cost his company thousands of dollars, but the plot doesn't explain where the money for a new prison would come from since the "parolee plan" is based on inability to build a new prison because of lack of funds. With two assistants, Connors and Crane and an actress named Madelyn, Beaton lays plans the overthrow the experiment.

"The 1998 French Open Championships" : The 1998 French Open was a tennis tournament that took place on the outdoor clay courts at the Stade Roland Garros in Paris, France. The tournament was held from 25 May until 7 June. It was the 97th staging of the French Open, and the second Grand Slam tennis event of 1998.

The Prairie King : Andy Barden, Edna Jordan, and Dan Murdock are the three claimants to the valuable mine of the late Abner Ferrige. Edna takes possession but Murdock gets her to leave and while the three are away his men take possession. But when the Lawyer arrives to announce that Ferrige never filed, everyone rushes off to be the first at the claims office.

1055

The Orb : There is an ancient tale about a Mysterious Orb that can change anyone into anything. It can also be used to grant anybody's deepest desires. One warm morning, A young man named Turee awakens in his peaceful village to find his parents gone. This has also happened to everyone else in the town too. Turee must set off with his neighbour Sophia and figure out what happened.

1056

Memoirs of a Survivor : 'D' is a chronicler of a society in chaos, who looks down on the marauding gangs, and rubbish-strewn streets from the fortress prison of her flat. Buffeted by inner dreams and longings, D finds an alternative world by stepping through the wall of her flat, like Alice through the Looking Glass. Here it is Victorian England, the bosom of an unsettled family, harbingers, perhaps, of the decay to come. She flits between the two sides of her double life, always observing, never participating, and watches as her protégé, Emily, becomes involved with vagrants' leader Gerald and their efforts to control the violent scavengers fail.

1057

Acts of Resistance: Command's Downfall : When the United States of America is faced with a nuclear threat in Manhattan, a group of Elite Special Intelligence Force is summoned to stop the nukes from detonating. But faced with an enemy from within, the mission starts to look even more impossible than it is. While two long time friends become foes, each fighting for freedom but differently. The enemies from within might not seem enemies after all.

1058

Charly 10th Anniversary Encore : Sam Roberts thinks he has all the answers: the purpose of life, the meaning of love, the plan for a perfect future; until Charly walks into his life. As opposite as New York and Salt Lake, Charly and Sam are thrown together by circumstance and repelled by differences. She's spontaneous and cynical. He's scheduled and idealistic. She's open and mischievous. He's guarded and practical. Differences lead to interest, however, as Charly finds depth in Sam's idealism and Sam seeks the vibrance of Charly's joie de vivre. But all is not smooth in the Rockies as their relationship accelerates - cultural differences, family issues, former loves and life-altering challenges threaten to shake things up. Adapted from Jack Weyland's best-selling novel Charly, the film is at times light-hearted, at times soul-searching, and above all a thoughtful journey of love, of laughter... and of hope.

1059

Deadly Arsenal : Lt. Col. Drake Cole is part of the U.S. Military's ultra secretive service The Delta Force. He commands lone-wolf operatives as well as teams of skilled operators who work on Black Operations around the world. Cole discovers that one of his operator teams, led by Lt. James Richards, was infected with an incurable deadly virus. Many of the team returned home prior to being symptomatic and mistakenly infected their families with the virus doubling the damage. A masked group of deadly killers work fast to cover up the situation, as they round up the sick families, and make them "disappear".

1060

American Commando 3: Savage Temptation : Orphaned and alone, Nora and her kid brother are unsuspectingly thrust into a world of drugs and prostitution. A world without hope. Until two American Commandos, members of the most decorated, most elite and most feared of the special forces in Viet Nam, come to their aid. From the first seconds until the harrowing finale, Savage Temptation will keep you on the edge of your seat!

1061

Nudes on Parade: Vintage Erotica of the 50s & 60s : In the 1950s and 1960s, a parade of gorgeous young women traveled to Hollywood, looking to be discovered by casting agents and big studio producers. While some achieved their dreams of stardom, others ended up in independently produced short films in which these nubile would-be actresses were asked to throw their modesty - and clothes - to the wind. These movies were meant to catch the modern woman in her most private moments - performing household chores, dancing to the latest twist record, or working on her tan - all of which, it seems, was better done in the nude. Though the names of the women featured in this collection are lost to history, their sensual allure is still apparent today.

Justice of the Range : The McLean and Brennan ranches are both losing cattle to rustlers and each blames the other when cattle buyer Graves is the real culprit. To throw suspicion off himself Graves hires Tim to investigate, not knowing that this will be his downfall.

1063

The Gambler Returns: The Luck of the Draw : The Gambler Brady Hawkes is back and he's about to lose his primary means of livelihood, when a law banning gambling is about to be passed. But in honor of that there's going to be one last great poker game and all what one needs to join is one hundred thousand dollars. A madame named Burgundy Jones along with four other madames is willing to put up the money for Brady but first he has to compete against four other gamblers in the end it comes down to Brady and a man named Cantrell. Brady barely beats him. So he, and Burgundy, and an old friend of his, Ethan Cassidy sets for the game which is in San Francisco. But Cantrell's a sore loser and is following them hoping to get the money so that he can join the game. Also following them is a band of outlaws who were planning to steal the money but Brady left with it before they got there. And along the way they encounter and/or are aided by some famous individuals like Wyatt Earp, The Rifleman, Cheyenne Bodie, Diamond Jim Brady, Bat Masterson, Judge Roy Bean, and President Teddy Roosevelt. Brady is also feeling that he might not have what he has to win; it seems that some time ago in Europe he lost a big game to an Englishman, and by strange coincidence he is also at the game.

1064

The Last Stagecoach West : The coming of the railroad to Cedar City spells the end of the stagecoach as the government gives the mail contract to the fastest means of delivery. McCord loses the stagecoach line gambling with the new buyer, but has enough hidden money to buy a ranch and some cattle. To make more money, he starts a gang to rob the railroad, express offices and steal cattle. But the railroads send out special agent Cameron to end his reign of violence. Rand McCord's stagecoach loses a race with the C&P Transcontinental Railroad, and he loses his government mail contracts and his stageline fails. He loses what little he has left in a poker game. McCord, accompanied by his assistant Steve Margolies, meets notorious outlaw Park Ketchum, and is surprised to learn that Margolies and Park are old friends, both having ridden with Quantrill's Raiders during the Civil War. Shortly after Margolies accepts the foreman's job on McCord's new ranch, a series of train robberies takes place. The Railroad Protective Association sends Bill Cameron, their top operative, to investigate the robberies. Cameron arrives posing as a patent medicine salesman. It takes him a while to figure out how the broke-and-busted McCord managed to buy a large cattle ranch.

King of Chinatown : A Chinese drug smuggling kingpin is targeted by a corrupt and ruthless police lieutenant trying to force him out of his territory. After his son is kidnapped by rivals, the king has one night to eliminate a collection of sinister criminals in order to rescue his boy and protect the people of Chinatown from the violence and extortion that awaits them.

1066

The Law Rides : Hank Davis kills Jack Lewis to get his gold mine. Bruce Conway brings him in but then realizes Davis is the only one that knows where the mine is. Bruce and his pal Whitey rescue Davis from the lynch mob only to have Davis' gang catch them and leave them in the desert to die.

1067

The Rough, Tough West : Steve Holden arrives looking for his old friend Big Jack only to find he runs the town and is greatly disliked. However the cause of the conflict is Big Jack's chief henchman Fulton. Steve becomes Sheriff and he and the Durango Kid then battle Fulton as he goes after the miner's gold. Steve Holden, also the Durango Kid (Charles Starrett), arrives in a mining town and finds that his old friend Big Jack Mahoney (Jock Mahoney billed as Jack Mahoney) is operating a saloon and winning illegal control of gold mines and claims. Saloon entertainer Carolina (Carolina Cotton) is in love with Mahoney and does not know of his unorthodox deals. Smiley Burnette (billed above the title on the film and the posters and eligible for 2nd billing for those who can't read), the local fire chief, sympathizes with the miners and, as usual, provides next-to-nothing in the way of help except some songs, which are overshadowed by the music from Carolina Cotton and Pee Wee King. Mahoney gains control of the town's only outgoing road and demands toll on all of the gold shipments. But Steve, newly-appointed Sheriff, and Smiley lead the miners to a secret(?) road to the one-street town, which turns out not to be all that much of a secret as the wagons are waylaid by Mahoney's gunmen. Will Big Jack see the error of his ways and reform? Not before fire chief Smiley sings "Fire of Forty-One" he won't.

The Dancer's Peril : The Grand Duke Alexis has been happy with his wife, Lola, formerly the queen of the St. Petersburg ballet, and their baby daughter, Vasta. But the lowering cloud that has always hung over them through the refusal of the Russian Court to recognize their marriage breaks when the Duke learns there is an intrigue against his wife's life. She makes her escape at midnight and, powerless to do anything, Alexis is forced to see his wife pass out of his life. The baby is given to Marta Antonovitch, in charge of the girls at the Imperial Ballet School. Years later Vasta is the most apt pupil at the school. Her father comes to see her often and is deeply affected by her resemblance to her mother. The relationship is kept secret, but when he is ordered to the south for his health he gives last instructions that she be well cared for. Michael Pavloff, the impresario for the Russian Ballet, who has discovered the duke's secret, goes to the school to choose the dancers to be sent by the government to Paris. He takes a liking to Vasta, but Marta refuses to allow the girl to go when he chooses her for deportation. The girl frets over the refusal, disguises herself as a boy and changes places with a youth who had not wanted to go. In Paris Lola, despite the sorrow of the changing years, holds sway over men's hearts. Pavloff is an ardent admirer of hers, but lately he has been thinking more of Vasta.

Richard Moraino, a young artist commissioned to paint the portraits of the Russian Ballet, is attracted by Vasta. Their courtship progresses and one afternoon while they are having tea together, Lola and Pavloff are seated at the next table. Both women feel an interest in the other and Lola is startled when Pavloff tells her he has discovered she is the daughter of the Grand Duke Alexis and that he intends to get her for his own. One night during the performance the electrician is killed and the stage darkened. When the lights are turned on again they discover Vasta has disappeared. Pavloff has taken the girl and locks her in his apartment. To divert suspicion he gives a dinner party. During the revelry Lola, who is a member of the party hears a half-smothered cry and, guided by it cornea to the locked door behind which Vasta is concealed. She stays until the last guest has departed and then appeals to the liquor-dazed Pavloff, She secures the key to the room and hurries back, cautioning Vasta to make haste, but Pavloff comes upon them and seizes Vasta in his arms. Lola then shoots him. Then Lola reveals her identity. Alexis, who is passing through Paris, stops to see Pavloff. He discovers Lola and the dead man and accuses her of having been his mistress, but when Vasta comes forward and tells all, Alexis begs her forgiveness. He says he will take the responsibility of the killing knowing he will be vindicated when he says it was to save the honor of his wife. Richard and Vasta are once more brought together and Alexis asks his wife if she is willing to brave the Russian Court with him after all these years. Her happy smile is sufficient answer.
